THE STRANGE MURDER MYSTERY THAT BAFFLES PARIS POLICE

IS THE WOMAN
IN THE CASE AN INNOCENT VICTIM
OR IS SHE THE
GREATEST CRIMINAL
OF MODERN TIMES?

PARIS has a new murder mystery rivaling that in which Mme. Steinheil was the central figure. And again the same elements enter in to confound the police—ambition, love, jealousy, hate. As always it is "the woman" who is at the apex of the eternal triangle, with the murdered husband and the lover at the base; this much the police know, but all their efforts to place the blame for the murder have proved fruitless.

So far the investigation has brought out two questions:

Is the woman in the case the innocent victim?

Or is she the greatest woman criminal of modern times?

The police are unable to decide, although they are inclined to answer "yes" to the latter. On the other hand, some of the greatest criminologists of France who have carefully observed the "tragic widow" and studied the testimony given at the preliminary court hearings are of the opinion that she is the victim of circumstances and that to convict her of the crime of murder would be a blot on the fair name of France.

Now for the facts of the latest mystery, as brought out by police investigation:

Killed on Return from Theater.

Until July 30 of this year there lived in Sevrès a draughtsman, Clerc by name. He was to all appearances an ideal husband, proud of his beautiful wife and his three children, a son of 14 and two daughters aged 11 and 8. Their home on the outskirts of the town was a pretty cottage with a well kept lawn and garden.

And what appealed to their neighbors especially was the aid Mme. Clerc gave her husband in a financial way. As the principal of a small boarding school she contributed quite a bit to the family income.

There had been rumors of course that happiness had no abiding place in the house of Clerc, but these were so indefinite that only the gossip gave them credence. The others relied entirely on the outward appearances of contentment.

But the veil was soon to be torn asunder by the ruthless hand of murder and what was then revealed made the inhabitants of Sevrès look askance at one another—if life could be so tragical for one, why not for another?

It was the night of July 30 that fate had decreed for the revelation. M. and Mme. Clerc had gone into Paris to attend the theater. The play over, they boarded a midnight train to reach their home in Sevrès. It was a little before 2 o'clock when they reached the front gate, leading to their cottage. The man opened the gate and followed his wife to the door of the house. The key rasped in the lock, the door opened, and the woman entered. Her husband turned to close the door when a shot rang out and Clerc fell mortally wounded, his body pitching head foremost through the open door onto the steps.

Husband Had Led Double Life.

It was not the sound of the shot that awakened the neighbors, but the shrieks from Mme. Clerc as she ran to get assistance. At the steps of the nearest house she fell in a dead faint, and it was not until she had been revived that assistance went to the aid of the stricken husband. He was still breathing when tender hands carried him into the house, and life did not pass from his body until later in the day, after he had been removed to a hospital. But he never regained consciousness, so from his lips could not be learned the name of his assassin, even if he had known it—which is doubtful.

Then came the police and with their investigation the revelation of the true state of affairs in the Clerc household.

Clerc himself passed from the good husband he had been pictured by his neighbors into a second Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. To the world he was an honorable man, devoted to his family; a good draughtsman, highly respected by the large manufacturing firm by which he had been employed—a good citizen of the republic.

But what a different picture is drawn of his home life!

To his family he was harsh, brutal, and exacting. His children feared him and his wife despised him for the miser that he was. Explained now was the fact that his wife conducted a boarding school; it was not merely to increase the comforts of life—it was necessary to provide a bare subsistence for herself and her children. In all their married life, dating from 1899, Clerc had never given his wife over a third of his monthly income and of late years he had contributed but a few francs weekly to the support of his family.

The police when searching the house came across a secret panel under the mantelpiece to Clerc's sleeping apartment. In this hideaway place were bonds to the amount of $2,400 and a letter written some years before and addressed to Mme. Clerc.

The bonds merely confirmed what was already revealed—that the dead man had been a miser. But the note? Ah, here was a clue that seemed to lead to a direct solution of the identity of the murderer.

The writer commiserated with Mme. Clerc upon the brutality and miserliness of her husband, and suggested that it would be better for all concerned if he were dead. It was signed by a former lover of the miser, Paratt, who was the father of one of her pupils.

tended victim. He said that Nollet at the instance of Mme. Clerc had gone to London to get some sure drug.

Why the plan had not been carried out Paratt asserted was because he had refused to be a party to the scheme.

Nollet when accused denied in toto the story of his former friend. He declared it was the hallucination of Paratt's diseased mind and his mad jealousy over Mme. Clerc. He now asserts that Paratt has taken a dislike to him because he is also a friend of Mme. Clerc and would avenge himself on both of them by pointing the finger of suspicion in their direction.

"The man is mad," Nollet said, "and in his insane jealousy, groundless though it is, would take us all down with him. My friendship for Mme. Clerc is wholly impersonal. Why, it was not until after the murder of her husband that I knew of her troublesome home life."

Police More Confused Than Ever.

And now comes the former servant of the Clercs, Roseria. Her testimony taken as the truth would convict Mme. Clerc, if not of the actual murder of her husband, at least of conspiring for his murder in the years gone by.

Roseria declares that her former mistress had attempted to make an accomplice of her in a plan to murder Clerc, but she had refused and had threatened to tell master of the plot against his life. A few days later she had been discharged and was now employed by the family of M. Paratt.

Offsetting this evidence it was shown that Roseria had threatened vengeance on her former mistress for discharging her, but until the trial had told no one of the alleged attempt. Mme. Clerc had made to induce her to kill Clerc. Then, too, Mme. Clerc significantly points out that she is now employed by the family of the man who now accuses her of still another plot.

And the police are more confused than ever. They have only circumstantial evidence at the best, and none directly connecting either Mme. Clerc, or Paratt, or

In this letter the police thought they could see a reason for Clerc's attitude toward his wife. But Mme. Clerc when confronted with the evidence declared that she had never seen the letter, and while the writer had in her possession a letter which seemed to connect him in any way with the murder. "And if my husband was jealous," she added with a shrug of her shoulders, "he had no cause to be—from that source least of all."

Seemingly conclusive was her fervid declaration that merely because a friend had written her—if he had—and stated what was most evident, that her husband would be better dead, it was no proof that either she or that friend had any wish to become his murderer. What were the divorce courts for? Did she not have recourse to them?

In fact, she confessed that six years before when life had become almost unendurable for her she had contemplated divorcing her husband, but for the sake of her children had refused to take such a step. Did it seem reasonable to think that after all these years of sacrifice for their sake that she would so sully their good name by conspiring in the murder of their father?

Earlier Lover a Drunkard.

Even the police were almost convinced. But not quite. Interrogation of Paratt gave another angle to the story. He is an inveterate drunkard, but recently released from a sanatorium and suffering from lapses of memory. When first taken into custody he denied having more than a passing acquaintance with Mme. Clerc or that he had written the letter found in the secret closet. Later, however, he confessed that he had been her lover in years past, and that she had refused his offer of marriage. He still persisted in saying that he could not remember having written the letter in question.

Further examination showed that he had been cognizant of the domestic troubles in the Clerc household, and that he knew of the contemplated divorce of the six years before. And what was more to the point he said that Mme. Clerc had confided in him that she wanted money to build up her school but that her husband refused to advance her any, although she was certain he had large sums in bank or concealed about the house. The police thought in this statement could be discerned an additional motive for Mme. Clerc to rid herself of a confessedly objectionable husband by other means than the divorce court. By his death she would come into the possession of all his savings—not a fractional part—and thus would be able to achieve her ambition of building up her school.

Plot to Drug Unfolded.

Still they were not satisfied, and additional pressure was brought to bear upon Paratt. Almost hysterical under the questioning of the officials he finally confessed he was still in love with Mme. Clerc, who, though she scorned him, would make use of his devotion to further her own affair with his friend Nollet. He declared that Nollet had disclosed to him a plot while in the sanatorium whereby Clerc was to be poisoned; he was to see that it was administered to the in-

Nollet with the murder. Even another theory that they have advanced, that Mme. Clerc fired the fatal shot herself, is no nearer proof or refutation. They assert their best theory is that one of the three is the murderer—which one they know not.

On the other hand, Mme. Clerc—and a large part of the population of Paris believe her—declares that it is all a part of an infamous plot conceived in the half mad brain of Paratt, because she has refused to return his love, and abetted by the discharged servant for the sake of revenge.

Thus the facts stand and all Paris asks the question:

Is the beautiful woman of tragedy the victim of a diabolical plot, or is she the most consummate woman criminal of today? What will be the answer?

PRICES ARE RISING.
Prices of food are steadily rising. The scarcity of foodstuffs is not expected to force famine prices, however, as wheat, flour and meat are arriving from Russia, Roumania and the Austro-Hungarian provinces.

It is officially announced that the Greeks are taking the offensive at Scutari and in the last two days have succeeded in turning the Montenegrin army under the Crown Prince. The Montenegrin losses are given at 2000 killed and wounded.

DISPATCHES DISAGREE.
ATLANTA, Nov. 2.—The "New Free Press" prints a dispatch stating that Nazim Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War and commander-in-chief, was captured in the fighting near Lule-Burgas. Other dispatches have stated that Nazim Pasha was killed and one message today said he was still at the head of his troops.

BALKANS TO KEEP THE FRUITS OF VICTORY, SAY OFFICIALS

(SPECIAL CABLE.)
BELGRADE, Nov. 2.—M. Andra Nikolic, president of the Serbian parliament, received the Tribune correspondent in the smoking room of his home. Having ordered the habitual hospitality of Serbia, coffee, the president said:

"It gives us new hope to learn that public opinion in America approves the stand of the Balkan states, and finds this war is just; that it was made to win liberty, even the right to live for our kindred under Turkish rule."

"We are delighted to learn that enlightened public opinion in America knows Turkey is incapable of remedying the deplorable situation of our Christian peoples in her dominions. We also learn with profound satisfaction that the great newspapers of America are making so odious the proposed loan to Turkey while she is at war with us that no bankers dare advance the money. To make such a loan would be to give money for the massacre of Christians."

"Suppose when you have won the war, Mr. President, the great powers were to say 'you must not keep the conquered territory.' What then?"

"The great powers may say what they please about preserving the territory of the Turkish empire. The territory we win in this war we will keep."

"Servia will take old Servia, Bulgaria will annex Macedonia, Greece will be united by the addition of Epirus and Montenegro by a piece of Albania."

"The talk about autonomy has passed into history. That did very well before the war, but as we were to take up arms, we will keep what we win."

BALKAN LEAGUE TO CONTINUE.
"Austria and Roumania have served notice that they will mobilize their armies if you take any Turkish territory."

"Let them mobilize. I repeat, we will fight if they try to take from us the fruits of our victory. The territory which was formerly ours by right is ours today. Should the powers order us to give up the conquered territory, I cannot recall too often we will fight."

"Our victory will be good for both Turk and Christian. We will treat our Turkish citizens exactly on a par with our Christian citizens. We are like America in this respect, we do not discriminate. Today a Jewish rabbi opened the parliament with prayer. A Mohammedan had a similar right. We do not merely tolerate; we give liberty to all."

"If Turkey wins the victory may be used for the Turk but it will be death for the Christian. Our victory will mean progress, civilization and the development of commerce."

"Will the alliance of the Balkan states continue after the war?"

"There are reasons why a seventh great power is needed. Russia, Germany, France, Austria and Italy seem not to be able to settle the affairs of Europe. The United States of the Balkans, the newest and most powerful power, will step in and help."

"Our cause extends beyond the Balkans."

WOULD 'CLEAN UP' STATE OF NEW JERSEY

Governor Wilson Promises to Do Job If Given Legislative Support.

TELLS WHAT HE WOULD DO TO THE SENATE

Wants Backing at Washington If He Is Sent to White House.

RED BANK, N. J., Nov. 2.—Governor Wilson promised the people of Monmouth county, at two big rallies, one at Long Branch and the other at Red Bank tonight, that if they will give him a Democratic legislature at Trenton he will clean up the state. New Jersey before he assumes the office of President of the United States.

When Wilson was elected Governor in 1910 he went into office with a Democratic assembly and a Republican senate. He managed to force through a considerable number of reforms and these attracted attention to him from all parts of the country. In the campaign of 1911 the Governor appealed to the people to give him a Democratic senate as well as a Democratic assembly so that he could complete the work he had set out to do and that the people had voted for.

"I have not stopped being Governor yet," he said tonight with an ominous snap of his jaws. "And it is my ambition to be associated with the Democratic legislature in New Jersey in doing some further things to set the people of New Jersey free from special and selfish interests."

"If I were sent to Washington to deal with a Republican Senate I would manage to make things just as disagreeable for that Senate as possible, but government does not consist in making yourself disagreeable. It consists in working in harmony with men who have the same convictions and the same sympathies as at heart. Government requires that great bodies of men should agree with one another in the great cause of humanity and right. Therefore I do not want to go to Washington in order to display such qualities as I have of coercion upon men."

"The only coercion that a public man has a right to use is the coercion of truth and an absolute display to his fellowmen of the facts in his possession. He has the right to ask the people to believe in what he is right and correct. If he is wrong, Government does not consist of agitation. All that I have been for you has been a spotlight. I have simply tried to follow with exposure the people and the things that are corrupting the state."

"The great danger in New Jersey, and it has been very interesting how many gentlemen decline to come on the stage because of the danger of having the spotlight turned upon them."

WANTS SUPPORT.
"I have come to the various audiences that I have had the privilege of addressing this time in New Jersey with this plea on my lips: Do not send me to Washington unless you intend to back me up in Washington. It will do you very little good to elect a man President whose program you believe in unless you back the program possible by seeing to it that you do everything in your power to give him a House of Representatives and a Senate that will back him up."

"We are going to do what we can to elect a Democratic legislature at Trenton and I shall stay on the job and complete the things I started out to do. Look what I am fighting for! I am fighting for a Democratic control of the government of the United States. That is what I am fighting for. I know that I could myself gain the Presidency, but I would take it without the support of the two Houses, and had my choice in the matter, I would decline to take it. It would be, no doubt, a very conspicuous and desirable position to occupy, but it would be desperately lonely, and I would only that, but it would put a man in a position which ought to break any man's heart. If anything will—a position of knowing what ought to be done for the people of the United States and longing to do it, and being absolutely powerless to accomplish it."

"I cannot imagine anything that would wear the heart out of a man more than that of seeing special interests still entrenched in the ultimate stronghold of theirs, the United States Senate, of seeing every impulse of the people of the United States balked and defeated because there was one part of their government which was withheld from them."

The governor was to have spoken at Freehold also, but the trip was abandoned because of the cold. The governor was chilled to the marrow by the trip from Long Branch to Red Bank. However, he finally decided to motor back to Princeton, a distance of fifty miles, and at Princeton he will deliver a campaign speech and will wrap up the campaign in a heavy fur coat. The balance of the party was marooned in Red Bank for the night.

Transfuse Blood And Halt Death
Mrs. Charles Pinkerton, Daughter of Former President Arthur Is Saved.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Charles Pinkerton, daughter of President Chester A. Arthur, it became known today, was saved from almost certain death last week by a blood transfusion operation, which was performed at the Pinkerton mansion near Mount Kisco, N. Y.

Mrs. Pinkerton had long been a sufferer from anemia. It was decided two weeks ago that only blood transfusion could save her. Two laborers were selected from many volunteers. The operation was a complete success and the condition of the patient is reported as satisfactory.

Mrs. Pinkerton before her marriage in 1902 was Miss Ellen Harnden Arthur. Her mother was a member of the Harnden family of Virginia, which was noted for the beauty of its women.

OAKLAND SHINING LIGHT IN MUNICIPAL MIRRORS

leader of the Italian-American colony of Oakland, and a power among his countrymen in this State, was a host in himself. Mazziotte was armed with thousands of letters printed in Italian appealing to the Italian voters to assist Oakland in her hour of need.

There were hundreds of olive-headed Sonomans who had not heard of the amendment, but they knew "Tony" and what he said went. If the Italians of that region do not do their duty next Tuesday it will not be the fault of Tony Mazziotte, who is known as the "king booster" of them all.

SAUSALITO INVADDED.
Striking Sausalito at 8:30 in the morning, the Oaklanders woke up the town with a parade that stretched over several blocks and was headed by W. J. Henderson's band playing the "Robert E. Lee" and down the line through the gamut of popular airs from "On Going Back to Dixie" to "Swanee Song."

Sausalito opened its doors and windows to a hall of thousands of buttons bearing the American flag and the mystic legend, "My City—Oakland."

Men broke from the marching ranks to pin the buttons on the pretty girls, be-whiskered and be-wildered citizens and through the streets rang the cry:

"How-dye-do, Sausalito
How-dye-do!
Are you for us?
We're for you.
How-dye-do, Sausalito,
How-dye-do!"

Cheers and waving handkerchiefs replied to Oakland's greeting. Before boarding the special train that awaited them, the Oaklanders lined up at the terminal of the Northwestern Pacific Railway and caught a trainload of San Francisco-bound passengers.

Men who were recognized as well-known San Franciscans were surrounded, their coat pockets crammed with Oakland literature, their coats covered with Oakland pins and buttons, and they were off to their homes, laughingly wriggled loose and fled.

COMPLIMENT RETURNED.
Petalmu showed herself a community well able to reciprocate when it comes to turning a pretty compliment.

Miss Eda E. Fisher, secretary of the Petalmu Chamber of Commerce, headed a delegation which met the local delegation at the depot. She was already supplied with Oakland literature and wore an Oakland button.

In her, Professor Gibson recognized an old pupil of his, and immediately Petalmu moved a bit closer to the affections of Oakland.

With Miss Fisher and various Petalmu residents in automobiles the parade with band playing for all it was worth, crossed and re-crossed Petalmu, cheering, distributing buttons and badges and being cheered in return.

At the corner of Main and Washington streets Messrs. Gibson, Denison, Miller and Clay delivered five-minute speeches to a crowd that packed the streets.

STRAIGHT FROM SHOULDER.
Each speaker hit straight from the shoulder, emphasizing the point that the amendment prevented any other city in the State except San Francisco and Los Angeles from performing a consolidated city and county government, and asking only that Oakland be permitted, unopposed, to work her destiny as she has been doing.

Continuous applause and cries of "That's the talk; we're with you, Oakland!" greeted each of the speakers.

The same reception was met at San Rafael, where an hour was spent in covering the town in an avalanche of literature.

The football team of Hitchcock Military Academy, in a van, followed with the Oaklanders at San Rafael, where they were met by a delegation of citizens joined the "flying legion" at that point and went through the rest of the day on the side with the flying legion.

At San Rafael the editors of the three newspapers there pledged their support to Oakland. They were M. J. Cochran of the "Independent," E. H. Olmstead of the "Tocsin" and S. H. Olmstead of the "Journal."

ALLEGIANCE PLEDGED.
The press of Petalmu followed suit, allegiance to Oakland being pledged by Anna M. Reed of the "Independent," "Daily Courier," and Santa Rosa was reached at noon, in time for luncheon at the Overton Hotel, where 150 places at table had been reserved. Every seat in the Overton grill was taken. Great was Petalmu's welcome. The Oaklanders tipped their hats to Santa Rosa, when Mayor John L. Mercler, a guest at the luncheon, got to his feet and predicted that Santa Rosa would vote "No" in one solid body.

Mayor Mercler's speech was greeted by wild cheers. In front of Santa Rosa's magnificent new courthouse, speeches were delivered by Gibson, Denison and Dan McLaughlin of Richmond.

Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, was one of those to fall under the spell of the Oakland spirit. Glen D. Hiter headed a delegation that pinned a button on Burbank's coat and converted him into an opponent of the sixth amendment.

"I don't believe in trying to hybridize Oakland and San Francisco," said the famous plant king. "Gentlemen, you are welcome."

Bier and his party brought back with them specimens of Burbank products as evidence of the hit they had made.

HEADSBERG SOLID.
A big rally in the town square of Headsberg at 4:30 in the afternoon following a band concert, wound up the journey north. Headsberg, too, closed its doors to the host of the visitors. Referring to San Francisco's bonding capacity as one of the issues involved, Professor Gibson drew a hearty laugh from the big crowd by saying Headsberg's attitude to that of a farmer who, having mortgaged his own land for all he could, goes to his neighbor's splendid farm and suggests a union so that they can plant a second mortgage on the combined property.

Convinced that they had won 100-000 votes for Oakland, the following members of the excursion returned last night to Oakland:

August L. Gerhard, Phoenix Engineering Company; C. F. Corrigan, S. P. Railroad Company; H. A. Oleson, Petalmu merchant; H. L. Rasmussen, deputy sheriff of Petalmu; H. H. Kercheval, city councilman of Petalmu; W. M. Crown, Frank K. Mott Company; A. A. Denison, secretary of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce; E. H. Coffey, teacher Oakland Manual Training High School; J. ANOTHER BIG TRIP.
So successful was yesterday's invasion of the north by the Oakland fighting legion, that the trip will be duplicated tomorrow, this time taking in San Jose and the Santa Clara Valley.

Every Oakland business man who can possibly leave his work is asked to be at the Southern Pacific depot tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock. It is hoped to have 200 people in the delegation. The trip will be made by car or ship, by special train through the beautiful Santa Clara Valley as far as Los Gatos and back by way of the peninsula and South San Francisco.

There will be a band and plenty of literature to be distributed. The same men who made yesterday's trip a triumph will go tomorrow.

Join them!

Mrs. Becker Hires a Lawyer
Convicted Police Lieutenant Hopes to Secure a New Court Hearing.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Attorney John F. McIntyre made a vigorous denial today of the report that he had withdrawn as counsel for Charles Becker, and announced that he would personally conduct the fight before the Court of Appeals to reopen the case.

J. A. Shay, a young lawyer, who was associated with McIntyre in the Haines trial, was retained by Mrs. Becker to take the place of Attorney John W. Hart, who was the first attorney employed by the convicted police lieutenant. Hart today declined to be interviewed. That was Shay went up to Sing Sing during the afternoon and had a conference with his client. When he returned to the city he said Becker was in the best of health and spirits and was hopeful of a new trial.

A score of detectives watched all trains arriving from the West today, hoping to catch the assassins alleged to be on the way here to kill District Attorney Whitcomb. The first train arrived at 10:30 a. m. and was believed to have abandoned the trip from Chicago as a result of the exposure of their plans.

Assistant District Attorney Moss spent a busy day in preparation for the trial of the gunmen, the first of which will be called before Justice Goff next Thursday.

Conservatives in The Lead in Cuba
Liberals, However, Declare the Finals Will Make Them Winners.

HAVANA, Nov. 2.—Both conservatives and liberals tonight claim victory in the Presidential elections. The conservatives have called four provinces, enough, they claim, to elect General Menocal. The liberals, however, maintain that the final count will show a victory for their ticket.

Excitement, much excitement, pending the announcement of a definite result. The streets are filled with excited manifestations of both parties and although martial law prevails, trouble is feared before tomorrow.

Complete returns up to midnight give the following results:

CONFESSES TO POISONING TWO

Young Woman Gives Herself Up to Los Angeles Police.

of Detectives Flammer in the presence of Detectives Boyd and Fitzgerald. Mrs. Lesh's confession follows:

"I want to tell you that I poisoned two women, one at Green Ridge, Pettie county, Mo., and the other at Sedalia, Pettie county, Mo. The first crime I committed in the year of the World's Fair in St. Louis in 1904, the other in 1905."

GAVE POISON FOR MEDICINE.
"They were sick and I gave them rough on rats. The first person I killed was Mrs. Elizabeth Quaintance, who had a husband and two married sons. They took me to raise in 1900 or 1901 from the orphan's home society in St. Louis of which Rev. C. C. Stahlmann was at the head. They were to keep me until I was 18 years of age."

"I was there about one month when Mr. Quaintance sent his wife back to Ohio, east of Ohio street, month, and during the time she was gone he ruined me. He is dead now."

NOT ACCUSED.
"In June, 1904, Mrs. Quaintance became sick. She was sick about a week when I gave her the poison. I filled two capsules about half full of rough on rats and gave it to her in her medicine. She died the next day. There was no suspicion regarding her death and I was not accused."

"After poisoning Mrs. Quaintance in June I remained there until some time in September of the same year, when Mr. Quaintance got me another place with Mrs. Tully about two miles south from Greenridge."

POISON IN BEER.
"I went to Sedalia in October. I went to a woman by the name of Mrs. Coo, a widow on Sixth street. It was just about a block east of Ohio street. I lived with her until July or August of the following year. I killed her with rough on rats. She was sick and I gave it to her in beer. She lived a few days afterwards. The doctor gave her poison and she died. I was not accused."

TOLD HUSBAND.
"Did you ever speak to anyone about this?" asked Captain Flammer. "No," she answered. "I told my father before we were married in Paducah, Ky."

"After Mrs. Coo died," continued Mrs. Lesh, "they took me back to the orphan's home where the superintendent put me to work. I remained there until the 4th of October or November, 1905. I ran away, got sick and was in the hospital in the home of the Good Shepherd for one day. Later I took a place to work with Mrs. Reed in South St. Louis. I was placed by Rev. C. C. Stahlmann, superintendent, with Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Quaintance at Greenridge, Mo. Shortly after she had been placed there Mrs. Quaintance died, apparently from natural causes, and a month or so later her mother committed suicide."

Parkman returned to the home and subsequently was placed with Mrs. Coo of Sedalia, Mo. Mrs. Coo also died after some time and the girl disappeared.

ACTOR CONFESSES TO KILLING WOMAN

Says He Did Not Know Sophia Singer Was Dead When He Fled.

away from her the object she was holding. It proved to be a door knob billy.

"Then I kept on struggling, but she was swinging the razor close to my face and she was so strong I could not keep safe from the razor. Then I struck her on the back of the head with the door knob."

STARTS TO SCREAM.
"She fell back on the bed, but she was only stunned. In a moment she came to and started to scream."

"To silence her I stuffed a handkerchief into her throat and bound it over her mouth. Then I tied her up the best I could. I did not think she was seriously hurt at all."

"When I had gone that far I began to think about Warthen. He was coming home pretty soon and I did not want any fight with him. It would be pretty hard to explain things to him so he would understand. I knew he would be in no mood to listen. 'We better beat it before he gets back,' I said to my wife and she agreed with me."

"We did not have money enough to go far, so I took $35 from Sophia and a couple of suits of Warthen's clothes and the suitcases."

BOARD CAR.
"Then we beat it out the back way. We went down the alley to Thirty-third street, then over to Indiana avenue and up to Thirty-fifth. At Thirty-fifth we got a car to State street."

"There was not another car to get in third and from there by another car to South Park avenue, where we got a car to Hammond."

"That's all there is to it. I thought all the time that Sophia was all right and that I had done nothing more than to fix her so she would keep still until Warthen got home and untied her. Then we got the newspapers and learned for the first time what had really happened."

Kramer was taken back to his cell after he had confessed. He seemed greatly relieved.

Angela that she had murdered two women, was found 11 years ago by Rev. J. J. Oren at Copier Bluff, Mo. Her parents then over to Indiana, at that time 11 or 12 years old. She was brought to St. Louis by Rev. Oren and placed with the Children's Home Society of Missouri in St. Louis. After several weeks in the home she was placed by Rev. C. C. Stahlmann, superintendent, with Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Quaintance at Greenridge, Mo. Shortly after she had been placed there Mrs. Quaintance died, apparently from natural causes, and a month or so later her mother committed suicide.

Parkman returned to the home and subsequently was placed with Mrs. Coo of Sedalia, Mo. Mrs. Coo also died after some time and the girl disappeared.

LET NO MAN TELL YOU

That because I advertise I have not the skill and ability to do your dental work. There is something wrong with that fellow—he possibly has an ax of his own to grind. Now listen to me. Let's reason this out on a basis that will be fair to each of us. Suppose this same fellow should say to you: "Don't buy of the White House City of Paris and the Dan I porium, because they advertise, you would think him crazy. Wouldn't you? These houses have been here a long time and you know what they offer you something in one of their advertisements you can go to their place of business and get just that thing, but when I offer you the most wonderful discovery in the past century for the relief of pain in Dentistry, they tell you I am a 'fake.' If you will ask that man if I ever used my Tertythesia on him or if I ever did any work for him, he will tell you, 'No.' How is such a man in a position to criticize me or tell you the truth? I leave the answer for your good common sense."

When I tell you that my Tertythesia Method will relieve "You of All Pain" in having your Dental work done, and that I have the skill and ability to do it—and in just as thorough a manner as the Dentist who does not advertise—I mean just what I say.

Suppose you had a very sensitive tooth, which you wished filled, and you go to your dentist and he would tell you, "Yes, the tooth will be painful to fill, but I will stand the pain I can make the work lasting. You stand just as much pain as possible, yet it gets so painful that the dentist can't prepare the cavity properly, and it is filled in a short while the work falls. You blame the dentist. Yet you should blame the pain. If you were my patient an application of my Tertythesia Method would simply put the tooth to sleep (mind you, I say the tooth) for a sufficient length of time, which would enable me to do what I wished to that tooth without your feeling that I was even working on it, and, furthermore, without injury to you or your tooth.

Now, if I can do this, don't you think I have the moral as well as any other right to tell you of it, and through any medium that I think just?

My Tertythesia Method has brought me the largest practice of any Dentist in the city, and I mean that this practice shall continue to grow from no other source than from an entire absence of pain in doing your dental work, and in sending you from my office with such beautiful and skillful work that you will be my patient in the future.

Come in and talk to my patients—ask them what this painless method has done in their cases.

Do you know anything of my method of replacing teeth without plates or bridge-work? If not, listen to this: If you have two or more teeth in your mouth, these are all I need to give you back every tooth that you have lost through either pyorrhea or decay.

These teeth look like natural teeth, feel like natural teeth, and you can use them just as you did your own teeth. You don't have to take them in and out as in plate work, they are as firm in your jaws as the rock of Gibraltar.

To the man or woman who has lost teeth, I say investigate my method. I don't ask you to take my chances. I assume all of that for my guarantee. It is so strong that it insures you against future troubles.

Let me examine your teeth free of cost and explain these remarkable methods to you.

Hours—5:30 to 8:30, Sundays, 10 to 12. Those who cannot call should write for the free book explaining my Tertythesia and Alveolar methods.

CAMPAIGN PROBE TO BE RESUMED

Clapp Committee to Look Into the 1904 Democratic Contributions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—John D. Archbold's payments to national legislators on behalf of Standard Oil and the Democratic contributions to the campaign of 1904, are to be the subjects of more vigorous inquiry by the Clapp campaign fund investigating committee. Hearings will be resumed about November 11.

Former Senator Foraker of Ohio, who was retired from public life by the publication of the Archbold letters to him telling of money payments for services, has asked the committee to permit him to be heard in explanation and defense.

Former Congressman John H. Overmeyer, also of Ohio, wants the privilege of telling how it came about that he accepted money and favors from Archbold while he was still a member of the House.

The committee will also hear former Representative Joseph Sibley of Pennsylvania, should the latter's health permit that he be called as a witness. Sibley has been called the Standard Oil agent in Congress and was the author of the famous letter to Archbold advising the latter to see Mr. B., a prominent Democrat and a leader of the Senate.

It is the impression here that William Randolph Hearst is to be asked by the committee to be present at these hearings and to testify concerning the letters he has published and others he may have in his possession.

Members of the committee are purged over the apparent failure of August Belmont and Thomas Tamm to remember the Thomas Fortune loan contribution of $450,000 to the Democratic National campaign of 1904. Tamm was chairman of the Democratic committee, but told the Clapp committee nothing of this heavy donation to pay the debts of that committee, and Belmont is believed to have been associated with Ryan in an effort to keep the campaign alive for Judge Parker. Ryan's effort will be made by the Clapp committee to secure the testimony of the Assistant treasurer of the Democratic committee, who, it was testified, might be able to give details of the campaign contributions of that year.

Woman Golf Champion Out With a Denial of Divorce

MRS. CHARLES T. STOUT, WHO DENIES THAT SHE AND HER HUSBAND ARE TO BE DIVORCED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Charles T. Stout, famous for many years as the national woman champion at golf, denies the story published recently that she and her husband are to be divorced. According to the court records, the suit was filed by Stout, who asked the custody of their eight-year old son.

In his complaint, Stout is alleged to have named as co-respondent Thomas McDonald, who was for a time superintendent of the Stout farm in Connecticut. It was claimed that Mrs. Stout spent a large portion of her time on this farm which is in a remote part of the state while her husband remained in New York, where he is a real estate agent. Now the couple have apparently become reconciled.

Vanderbilt and Bride Back in New York

Fail to Bring Heir to Millions; to See the Horse Show.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt and his beautiful young bride, who was formerly Margaret Emerson McKim, arrived today on La Provence for a brief visit with Mrs. Vanderbilt, the bridegroom's mother. They expect to remain until after the national horse show, which is conducted by the association of which Mr. Vanderbilt is the president.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt talked with delighted interest of their baby son, who is just six weeks old. The happy parents united in declaring that they wanted to bring Master Vanderbilt, who is the new heir to so many millions, across with them, but they feared he would not be able to stand the ocean voyage.

Mrs. Vanderbilt said that she did not bring any photographs of her baby boy to this country.

She is too young to be photographed, she remonstrated, when it was suggested that she had overlooked one matter that would cause disappointment to her friends.

Mr. Vanderbilt had expected to take his bride at once to The Breakers, the Newport villa of his mother, but owing to a very rough passage La Provence came up to her pier hours later than expected. The Vanderbilts spent the evening at their hotel in the city quarters in the New Vanderbilt Hotel.

Aunt Predicts Victory for Taft

Aged Relative of President Believes He Will Be Re-elected.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 2.—That the people of the country will re-elect President Taft on Tuesday is the belief of his aged aunt Miss Della C. Torrey, who anxiously awaits election night.

Miss Torrey has followed the campaigns of all three candidates for President through the daily papers and although she admitted the third party might possibly reduce her favorite nephew's majority, she brightened up in a moment.

"President Taft has made a good President," she said, "and the people want him and will elect him again on Tuesday."

The explosion occurred shortly before 2 o'clock this morning while the Vermont was at anchor on the southern drill grounds awaiting the break of day for the beginning of regular fall target practice. There were only six men in the fireroom when the head of No. 6 boiler blew out with terrific force. Wagner and Hogan being nearest the boiler, received the full force of steam and the boiling water all over their bodies. The fires were banked, but the room was miserably warm and the men wore only their trousers and thin undershirts. The escaping steam caught every one of the six men before they had a chance to escape. Wagner and Hogan were literally boiled to death.

The condition of the four survivors is reported to be extremely critical tonight.

Watches and Cash.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Two bandits, both of whom were very evidently amateurs, but who operated with the aid of masks and pistols, held up a car of the Polk and Larkin streets line at the Lombard street terminus shortly before 10 o'clock tonight and escaped with two gold watches and a little over $25 in cash.

The car was due to leave Polk and Lombard streets at 9:55 p. m. Motorist J. Johnson had his watch in his hand and was waiting for the hour of departure to arrive when he was suddenly confronted by the two robbers, who stepped up to him with revolvers pointed at his head. One of them was tall, attired in a light suit, wore a black mask and was rather shabby in appearance. The other was shorter, about five feet six inches, and wore a white handkerchief over his face. He appeared to be of light complexion. The taller man was the spokesman.

"We want your money," he said with a threat.

"Quit your kidding, what are you trying to do, play a practical joke on me," replied Johnson.

To emphasize their demands one of the highwaymen then grabbed the motorist's watch, which he still held, while the others searched him, taking $140.

Passing through the car they held up Conductor J. Harkins from whom they obtained $24.45. Of this $17.45 was the company's money. Warning the crew to make no disturbance the bandits jumped out and disappeared in the direction of Fort Mason. The car was started and the North End station notified as soon as a telephone could be reached. Patrolman Eplington made an unsuccessful search of the vicinity for the pair.

15,000 MILES OF FILMS FOR MOVIES EXPORTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The tremendous growth of American moving picture business abroad is reflected in official figures on the importation and exportation of motion picture films given out by the Department of Commerce and Labor. The article giving the figures also details the export of films.

Films in creating a demand abroad for articles made in the United States. More than 15,000 miles of motion picture films were exported from the United States in the last fiscal year, while nearly 3000 miles were imported. The exact length of the films exported in the year ending June 30, 1912, was 80,036,302 feet, valued at $4,815,000. The length of films imported was 14,274,786 feet of "positives" valued at $245,083.

A large proportion of the motion picture films now used in the various parts of the world are manufactured in the United States. About two-thirds of those exported go in the "unexposed" form, ready for use in taking pictures in motion.

MASONIC OFFICERS HONORED

Banquet given by Sequoia Lodge 349, F. and A. M., in honor of William F. Filmer, Masonic Grand Master of California, and Past Grand Master Judge William S. Wells.

REFUSES TO LOSE MONEY; BEATEN UP

Poker Players Shoot Victim and Stick Knife in His Ribs.

CANANDAIGUA, Nov. 2.—After Antonio Papa had sat in a game of poker at Victor, and had lost only 60 cents, two other men in party, he says, made him give up $20 before they would permit him to leave the game. Then as a farewell one of them, he asserts, sent a bullet through his jaw, while a second prodded him in the ribs with a knife. He applied to Justice Edward H. Parry of this village for warrants for the arrest of Pietro Musilano, Jack Congiast and another man, whose name he said he did not know. The warrants were issued and Constable John Concannon went to Victor in search of the men.

Few men are as black as they are painted or as white as their tombstones would indicate.

WOMAN IS STRUCK DOWN BY BURGLAR

Surprises Prowler at Work and Receives Heavy Blow in Face.

Surprising a burglar who was engaged in looting her apartments when she returned home last night, Mrs. H. Talbot, an aged woman living at 2334 Waverly street, was struck in the face and knocked to the floor, while the intruder made his escape. Her screams attracted the attention of John Dickens, a neighbor, living at 2033 Alameda street, and he summoned the police by telephone. Captain of Inspectors Agnew responded in the police automobile. When he arrived at the Talbot home he found the neighborhood in an uproar, but he did not go to the direction taken by the burglar. Search was made on the premises of Captain Agnew and Policeman Edward Hughes, police chauffeur. They found that a rear window had been jammed with a fish plate. Apparently nothing of value had been taken, as Mrs. Talbot's arrival had evidently interrupted the burglar shortly after he had gained entrance.

UPON entering her cottage Mrs. Talbot noticed that her bedroom door was closed. She remembered that she had left it open upon leaving the house. As she opened the door and groped about for the electric switch, the burglar struck her in the face and dashed past her to an open window. Captain Agnew obtained a description of the intruder and the assurance of Mrs. Talbot that she could readily identify him if apprehended. The woman's injuries were not serious, although she had just left her sick bed. She sustained an abrasion on her lower lip from contact with the man's fist. The burglar was about 25 years of age, smooth shaven and wore a brown suit.

MOTHERHOOD FAILS TO SHAME SINNER

Girl Re-enters Den, Resisting Piteous Appeals of Her Baby Boy.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 2.—Crawford street, with its alluring vices, proved too strong a temptation to Dora Brown, 18-year-old mother, who, with her little son, had been confined to her room following the girl's arrest by officers of the Juvenile Court. She was the companion of Anna Vincent, the girl who killed herself only the other day. Every inducement was offered the wilful girl by Miss Battle and other Nashville women who had become interested in her case. WEALTHY WOMAN'S GIFTS. One prominent woman of the wealthy class, following the story of Dora Brown and her little son, had been confined to her room following the girl's arrest by officers of the Juvenile Court. She was the companion of Anna Vincent, the girl who killed herself only the other day. Every inducement was offered the wilful girl by Miss Battle and other Nashville women who had become interested in her case.

When questioned as to why she insisted on returning to her former life she acknowledged that she was "in love" and would rather give up her child than her sweetheart. She was told that probably she had never had a chance to meet a better life than the "sweetheart" might marry her. She then asked her head in disdain and said that she did not care to marry, her life suited her, she had no friends except the inmates in the house from which she came and she wanted no others.

During the conversation copious tears were shed, and the tiny little boy would now and then pat his mother on the cheek and say, "Don't cry, mama."

Resisting all efforts to make her stay and assuming the generous offers made by the society matron, the young girl presented a pitiful spectacle as she walked down Park Place and with drooping head passed into the environs of Crawford street. The battle and the workers of the United Charities consider this to be one of the most stubborn cases with which they have ever had to deal, and the only solution of the girl's strange attachment for the house of ill fame and its inmates is that she entered there at such an early age that she had no other associates and the life had taken such a fearful hold on her she could not break away.

ST. MARY'S RUGBY PLAYERS VICTORS

Collegians Win From the Napa High School Team; Score 8 to 0.

The second Rugby fifteen of St. Mary's college defeated the Napa high school aggregation at Napa yesterday afternoon by a score of 8 to 0. The collegians played a fast game and at times rushed the high school boys completely off their feet. In the first half a passing rush started by Captain West finished in a score for the wearers of the Red and Blue. Young crossed the line for a try. Daley converted. The Oaklanders were unable to score again in this half, but for a time threatened the high school's line. Brilliant defense work, however, saved the Napa team from being scored on and the half ended with St. Mary's enjoying a 5 to 0 lead.

As with the first half, the collegians began rush after rush and were prevented from scoring only by heroic efforts of the Napa lineemen. In this half the effectiveness of St. Mary's backs was especially brought out. A number of long punts by full back Oeschger kept the collegians' line out of danger. Woods and Leonard showed some snappy passing stuff and kept the high school defense busy all the time. A dribbling rush started by the Napa team was broken by the machine like movement forward of the locals and a long kick sent the ball over the line of the high school lads. Townsend dropped on it, clearing the second try for the collegians. The attempt to convert failed. From then on the Napa team held on desperately and kept the Red and Blue fifteen from further scoring. A determined effort was made by the inland rugbians to score in the last few minutes of play, but the splendid defense work of Townsend, Fleming, Moore, Wallace and other members of the team held them back.

GOES CALLING WITH REVOLVER

Husband, Separated From His Wife, Seeks Her and Father-in-Law Beats Him.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—"Go that you, Louise? Well, I am coming out to see you." This was the message received by Mrs. Louise Dudley, wife of George Dudley, an accountant, residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Dinton, 824 Turk street. The couple have been separated and as Dudley had made a similar statement to Dinton last night there was some apprehension. When the message was received Dinton rushed out. When he arrived he found Dudley pinned on the floor with Dinton standing over him. He had been given a good beating. In his pocket was found a fully loaded revolver. According to Dinton, Dudley went to the house and went upstairs looking for his wife. She had fled and when he came down he was tackled by the father-in-law, who wanted him in the combat. Harrison placed him under arrest, charging him at the city prison with threats against life and carrying concealed weapons.

"I had no intention of killing my wife," said Dudley afterwards. "I had thought to kill myself with it. I was going to see my wife and then I was going over into Jefferson Square and shoot myself."

The couple have been living apart for four months and have a three-year-old boy. It was afterwards learned that Dudley is an assumed name and that the man's real name is George Vogart.

ATTACKED BY MAD DOG; AGED WOMAN MAY DIE

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Attacked by an infuriated pig that she was feeding, Miss Jefferson Deel, 75 years old, of Rockfield, Ind., near Hammond, was so terribly bitten by the animal that she will probably die.

The pig threw the aged woman to the ground, tearing her face and throat. When she feebly tried to drive it away it seized her hand and tore off part of the member. Screams of the woman brought her son, who tried to effect a rescue by beating the animal with a hammer. The pig turned upon him and inflicted injuries that leave him also in a serious condition. He finally drove the pig away and carried his mother to the home, where her condition is critical.

TETRAZZINI and TARQUINI—DEVOTEES OF THE AUTOPIANO.

My American tour has made me a strong believer in the great good to be accomplished by the Autopiano. There is no musical instrument so valuable to the student of opera, its really artistic effects seem incredible. Not everyone can know and enjoy the best of music. I have gained much good in using the Autopiano.

Lulza Tetrzzini, crowned the Song Queen of San Francisco by universal acclaim, and Tarquini Tarquini, who captivated the hearts of all in the recent Lam-bardi Grand Opera season, are staunch believers in the boundless possibilities of the Autopiano.

The Autopiano is a blessing to humanity. It should be in every home, for it brings with it culture and refinement which only the compositions of the great masters afford. I find I can play the great operas with the same feeling and expression with which I sing them. I love to play it—it is wonderful—there is no player piano equal to it. Faithfully yours, Lulza Tetrzzini

Expositions have within a few years given the Highest Grand Awards to the Autopiano. It is the choice for the battle-ship of the Navy and of countless musical men and women of the highest refinement. If it is the best player piano you want, the Autopiano will more than satisfy you and its reasonable price brings it within the reach of every family. For those who want a smaller instrument the classic Bungalow Player Piano satisfies everyone. The demand for this little beauty has temporarily exhausted our supply, but several more cartons are expected this week. SHERMAN'S EYEGLASSES. STOKES OPTIC EXCHANGE.

It has an enrollment of 450 families and 253 children are daily attendants of its school.

HUSBAND DRUNK SINCE
 MARRIAGE, SHE SAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Elizabeth Werner told Superior Judge Graham this morning that her husband, Henry Werner, had been intoxicated ever since the day after their marriage. The couple wedded June 26, 1912, and the evening of the next day, according to the wife, the period of inebriation started. The court thought it his duty to cut short the spree if a decree of divorce would serve to bring Werner up with a sudden turn. The wife, therefore, received the relief sought.

TELLS WHY WOMEN
 SHOULD HAVE VOTE

Inventor Edison Says the Fair Sex Is the Moral Force of the World.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, told the other day why he is for Theodore Roosevelt and the Progressive party. What he said about votes for women was not generally published.

"And equal suffrage?" the interviewer asked.
Edison fixed his eyes, fixed that wide, practical mouth of his and thought for a minute. "Well," he said, "women should certainly have the vote on all questions involving the education of their children and all moral questions. Yes, and questions concerning their work, too."
"Just where would you draw the line?" Edison thought for a minute. It was plain that the inventor was working within, turning out a thousand ideas a second.

"I guess we can't," he said finally, arguing aloud to himself. "I guess I can't stop there. No, I'm for it. It's not right and it's expedient. No. Woman's the moral force of the world, and this movement's part reduction of waste and equalization of wealth and part plain morals."
"You know, the average man's a pretty tough proposition when you strip off the husks. Just lately we've been stripping off a few husks in New York—the Rosenthal case. If I hesitated on that point, it was because I was afraid of the trouble of doubling our vote in a time when we've got so much to do. But after all, that will take care of itself, I suppose."

PREFERS DEATH TO WEDDING WIDOWER

Girl of 17 Would Rather Drown Than Marry Parents' Choice.

READING, Pa., Nov. 2.—"I'll drown myself rather than marry that man," declared Mary Froman, 17 years old, in telling her story to Chief of Police Green. Continuing, she said:
"My parents want me to marry a widower with three children. He has a good job and owns property, but I don't want him. He is 37 years old and is entirely too old for me. He says that he wants a young wife so that he can have control over her. My parents insist that I marry him, but I'd rather drown myself than do that."

She told Chief Green that she had a quarrel with her parents, who told her to leave home. She came to the police station for protection, saying her parents had refused to give up her clothing. She works at a boarding mill and makes good wages. Chief Green investigated her story and found it to be correct.
Temporary quarters were obtained for the girl at the Young Women's Christian Association. Later her father called at the police station and demanded to know where his daughter is, but the information was refused. It is likely that the Humane Society will take up the matter with the courts and ask that a guardian be appointed for her.

HUSBAND RICH; WIFE IN POVERTY
 Woman Without Coal Accuses Spouse's Relatives of Making Trouble.
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Asserting that her husband, with a certain amount to care for him in his illness, is living in luxury at the home of his wealthy son-in-law and daughter, while she is suffering from cold, because she has no money to buy coal, Mrs. Estelle Clarke told her husband inserted a notice in a Jamaica, L. I., newspaper to the effect that he would no longer pay her debts.
 Mrs. Clarke, who was formerly Miss Estelle Bishop, a member of a family well known in Southampton and Greenport, L. I., accuses members of her husband's family of having come between her and Clarke. For years she was in the grocery business in Jamaica, and with her help, Mrs. Clarke says, he managed to accumulate considerable property. He gave the house, she lives in and the adjoining one to her, she says, before the separation, which occurred five weeks ago.
 Mrs. Clarke has retained George H. Alexander, a Jamaica attorney, to bring an action against several of her husband's relatives, alleging alienation of affection.

COSTS $6 TO ACT LIKE A "COPPER"
 Takes the Irish to Bluff 2 Street Cars, Traffic and Then Get Pinched.
 "CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—It cost James Flynn $6 to feel like a policeman for 10 minutes. He was charged before Municipal Judge Wells, arraigned with impersonating an officer.
 Flynn stationed himself at a street corner and when the first car came along he held up his hand authoritatively for it to stop.
 The motorist leaned out of the window and told Flynn to move on.
 "You stay where you are. I'm a detective," said Flynn, and the car stood. Next he stopped a car going in the opposite direction and gave half a dozen wagons that were trying to cross the street. In three minutes there was a jam of vehicles at the corner. Then a real policeman got back on his beat, straightened out the jam and arrested Flynn.
 "What did you want to stop the traffic for?" asked Judge Wells.
 "I dunno; I was drunk, I guess," said Flynn, and left immediately. I wanted to see how it felt to be a copper." The judge fined Flynn $1 and $5 costs.

GOV. JOHNSON HAS MESSAGE FOR CALIFORNIA

"Let State Speak in No Uncertain Terms Tuesday," He Declares.

SPEAKS AT RALLY FOR AMOS PINCHOT

Whole Nation Looks to Golden State, Says Progressive Candidate.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Southward down the State the "Roosevelt-Johnson Bull Moose Special" traveled today. Ten meetings were scheduled for the day and at night Governor Johnson spoke in New York at a rally of the supporters of Amos Pinchot in his race for Congress.

Before leaving here the Governor issued a statement directed to the voters of California, telling that the nation looked upon that State as the parent of Progressivism, and asking them to support the ticket throughout the State. He declared if he were in California, he would not attempt to speak on the Progressive platform, as he felt it was too well understood to require further elucidation.

"HYPOCRISIES," HE CRIES.

"It is quite appropriate that the reactionaries of the Republican party in California, hypocritically pretending that they have been disfranchised, but really following the design of the reactionaries all over the nation, should be against me," he said.

"Here in New York, Mr. Barnes, the reactionary Republican boss, and Mr. Murphy of Tammany Hall are united in common purpose at all hazards to defeat Roosevelt and Pinchot. State reactionaries of all parties pursue the same course. This cause of ours is abhorrent and fatal to all who in the past have exploited government and made a mockery of popular rule.

"With a rightful pride in the leadership in this movement, and yet finding myself 3000 miles away in these closing days of the contest and forced with utmost regret to prolong my absence by the requirements of a sacred duty, I cannot forbear to say just a final word to the people of California.

"We have been striving in the nation to lighten the burden of the heavy laden; to uplift the under-man, for a living wage for women; for equal opportunity for little children; for equal justice for those who play and those who toil; for those who have not as well as those who have; for the prevention of the human waste, too long forgotten and the respect of household; and for a government for humanity. No state better understands this cause than California. The cause has come out of our western homes and in a brief period has become the hope and inspiration of millions of our countrymen.

DUTY OF NATION.

"The fulfillment of this cause is an expectation of but one party—the Progressive. Mr. Wilson cannot embody this cause, or carry it to a successful fruition, because, by his doctrine of state rights, he denies the power of the federal government to aid in the cause. We strenuously assert that the United States government not only has the power, but that on it rests the duty to carry out our program of social and industrial justice.

"So as this cause has gripped Californians in this campaign, as it has gripped the citizens of Illinois, Pennsylvania, Kansas, New England and New York, then California can vote but one way—for the party of the cause.

"The whole union looks to California for the vindication of the cause that have now become synonymous with the spirit of the west. Within California's own borders these issues had their genesis and from California came the first great impetus that has made our human gospel a national issue.

"The national issues aroused in our state on the Pacific Coast have swept the continent in an ever increasing volume, until today the states of the Atlantic are as enthusiastically and spontaneously progressive as California.

"Let California, like every other state in the Union, on Tuesday speak in no uncertain terms."

SPECTATORS WOULD NOT MAKE JURORS

"Nighties" May Be Pretty, But Not Sufficient for Frosty Platform.

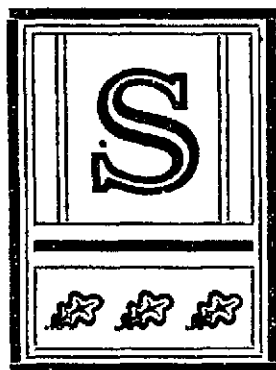

MARINETTE, Wis., Nov. 2.—The question of whether or not a person can be a juror in a case where the evidence is "nighties" and "nighties" was decided today in a suit filed in the circuit court. Sam Egan and his wife, May Egan, of this city, have filed separate suits against the Pullman Car company. The Egan suit demands $2000, and the wife's $200.

They allege that on a trip to Stratford, Ontario, Canada the porter of the Pullman car failed to awaken them until the train reached the depot platform, and that the porter told their children from the train that they were in a car covered with frost.

The complaint says the parents had to keep their children from going to the train. And that they were "toughened" to the state of numbers of men and women while in that state of dress or undress.

LAWYER WILL CARRY A DREAD
SECRET TO THE GRAVE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—I understand from good authority that the Berkeley furniture factory site of the Continental Building and Loan Society, which State Building and Loan Commissioner Walker insisted was not worth $15,000, has practically been sold by the society for $50,000, the sum of $10,000 having already been paid to bind the bargain. A similar good showing, it is said, will soon be made with the organization's Belvedere holdings, in spite of Walker's estimates to the contrary. A banker, who has been quietly studying the affairs of the institution, thinks it can readily be liquidated without the loss of a dollar to anybody—in fact, probably with a small surplus. Meanwhile Walker is still endeavoring to force it into bankruptcy in the Federal court against the determined opposition of Gavin McNab, its attorney. How that fight on the part of Walker will end remains to be seen. The more his attitude towards the Continental and State Senator Black's Palo Alto Building and Loan Association is studied, the more plausible appear late rumors that originally it was planned to have the Continental, under Black as receiver, reorganize and absorb the Palo Alto institution. If this scheme could have been carried out quickly, as was aimed at, it is alleged Black hoped to cover up his manipulations of the accounts of the Palo Alto concern and give himself plenty of breathing time, under a friendly state commissioner, to work out his and its salvation. The Continental people's battle was too swift for both of them, whatever may be the real financial merits of that institution. Then the woeful collapse of the Palo Alto Society, with the disgraceful expose of Black and his imprisonment, ruined the plot completely. That Black had thought out a scheme of this kind to try and save himself financially hardly admits of any doubt. Before his exposure, Walker believed in him, both in his ability and honesty. In this plotting on his part, Black depended much on Walker's opinion of him and friendly offices for the success of his somewhat Napoleonic game at finance.

Hoeling Cotton Ever Since

R. B. Hale is generally and correctly recognized as the first San Franciscan who suggested the holding of a world's universal exposition in San Francisco to commemorate the completion of a canal between the two oceans. The suggestion came from Hale even before Congress chose the isthmus of Panama as the place to build it and began preparations for actual work on the big ditch. With due modesty, Hale, who is the first vice-president of the exposition company and a hard worker for it, frequently has to listen to praise of himself as having been this first man. This was the case at a dinner the other night when he was being introduced as a speaker. He cleverly alluded to the matter himself by applying a story of some darkies who visited a menagerie in the days before the civil war. One of them, thinking the gorilla might be a member of his own race, addressed the animal, saying:

"How is youse?"

No response coming from the inmate of the cage, the black slave again said:

"How is youse?"

Still there was no reply, which caused the negro to again give it the same salutation. For a fourth time he said, "How is youse?" and still hearing no response he came to the satisfactory conclusion:

"That's right; don't say nothing. If you'd talk, they would have you hoeing cotton before the end of the week."

"Now in my case," concluded Hale, "I talked and I've been hoeing cotton ever since."

Will Carry Secret to Grave

Several professional men were in a reminiscent mood last night, recalling how either fact or rumor has it that this or that San Franciscan got his first start in the law or medicine or as a business man. One of those present made no bones of how he got his first fee of $1000. He was a lawyer. Things were desperate with him just before this cash fee came his way. Rent of home and of office were overdue and a wife and baby had to be fed. One Saturday noon, just as he was thinking he would have to get money by pawing some of his law books, which were not numerous, in walked a woman who turned out to be a leader of the demi-monde. She wanted a will made in favor of her mother and an only child, a daughter, neither of whom knew of her life in this city. She came with the card of a man who had been his school chum and who is now a local bank official. She paid him half the cash on the spot because of the other man's recommendation. The legal work in connection with the will satisfying the woman, the lawyer said he obtained several other good fees through her instrumentality during the next ten months.

"I then began to get on Easy street," continued the Blackstone disciple who is now one of the leaders of the bar and possessed of a fortune. "The time came when I could be of service to the daughter of this woman. She inherited the property, worth $150,000, the grandmother having died, and

I saw that she got it all. A pure, lovely young woman she was and happily married. Happily, she, even until this day, is still in ignorance of the mother's life on this coast, and was always led to believe that her father had died in her infancy. The father, who was never married to her mother, has made a name for himself in the army and has never seen this, his first child. He has a wife and children. He and I will carry his secret to the grave."

Pacific Union Club Assessments

Just mention an assessment to a Pacific Union Club member if you want to see an angry look.

Bothersome financial things, these assessments.

Last year each member had to pay an extra $65 to take care of interest on a $900,000 bonded debt, and a sinking fund. Another one in the same amount for a similar purpose is soon to be called for. On the heels of this assessment comes word to the club from the city authorities that it will have to pay an assessment of $25,000 as its share of the cost of the proposed Stockton street tunnel under the California street hill. The reason for this tax is because the institution owns the improved business property at the northeast corner of Stockton and Post streets, the site of its home before the great fire. But don't worry about this exclusive social organization. While many of its members may fret about assessments, its affairs will be so managed as to put the balance on the right side of the ledger some day. It owns the club house on Nob Hill, probably the finest in the land, as well as the Stockton street corner. Buying the Nob Hill place from the Floods, improving it and putting a business structure on the Stockton and Post lot is what caused the $900,000 debt in the shape of bonds. Just at present it is hard pressed for ready money. Eventually the officials are confident of selling the Stockton street lot and business structure for $450,000, cutting the bonded debt in half. The club managers want to wait until somebody gives them that price instead of sacrificing the property. In the meantime the only financial relief is by assessments. The tunnel tax was not figured on. However, the tunnel on that street, with an electric car line, will add to the value of its Stockton street lot. Still, men, though rich, who pay a $500 club initiation fee and dues of $10 a month, do not take kindly to a lot of assessments any more than other folk.

Beggar's Laugh Was Profitable

The street beggar got twenty-five instead of ten cents out of President George F. Richardson of the Bohemian Club because he showed a good sense of humor the other evening. This is how it all happened. Walking up Kearny street to catch a car out Sutter, the handsome club official was appealed to by a beggar for a dime with which to get something to eat. Eying the fellow closely, and suspicious that the money would soon be exchanged for something of the wet variety, once he got it, Richardson remarked to him that there was an institution in town that existed just for such poverty, or bad luck, cases as his.

"You mean the Associated Charities?" he asked, evidently familiar with the name.

"Yes, that is it," replied Richardson. "Why don't you go there and state your case, if you are deserving."

"Oh, I've been there and they told me they can only help married men," was the reply.

"Then, apparently, the only thing for you to do is to get married, is it not?" retorted the clubman without cracking a smile.

Well, to hear the fellow laugh! His ha, ha, ha and oh, oh, oh, made such boisterous merriment that Richardson was glad to slip him a quarter and escape the crowd of the curious that was gathering at the sound of the loud laughter.

$4,000,000 for Book Collection

With the payment of half a million dollars for the private library of Beverly Chew of New York the other day, Henry E. Huntington of Los Angeles has up to date spent over four millions for several book and manuscript collections, including some separate purchases of rare and high-priced volumes. One of the most ardent of art and book collectors in the United States, Huntington, presumably, will gather them all into his country palace in Southern California, near Los Angeles. The largest sum he has spent for a single library was when he got that of the late E. Dwight Church of Brooklyn for $1,300,000 about a year ago. This library is especially valuable for its collection of American and a complete collection of early editions and folios of great English writers. Of these latter it has every variety known, with the exception of Shakespeare's four folios. When the original owner of this library made a catalogue of it, the work cost him $40,000. Huntington and J. Pierpont Morgan were the only two men who wanted the library. They finally came to an understanding and so did not bid against each other. By the arrangement, Huntington became the purchaser, Morgan to get certain of the books at an agreed price. It is said he will get his share of them late this month. Among the Americans in this library, which Huntington retains, is the original manuscript of Benjamin Franklin's Autobiography and the First Laws of the Colony of Massachusetts. Huntington and his friends quote Worthington Ford, librarian of manuscripts of the Congressional Library in Washington, as saying that next to the Declaration of Independence and the final draft of the Constitution, the Franklin Autobiography original manuscript is the most valuable historic paper in the world. It was once owned by John Bigelow and is valued at $40,000. Before his death, Church was offered by the Bay State $25,000 for the First Laws of the Colony of Massachusetts, but declined to sell. Huntington has had offers for these two but is not willing to part with them.

There seems to be no end to Huntington's expenditures as an all-around collector of art and books, and his friends say he can keep up the pace, for they rate his fortune between seventy-five and a hundred millions, the largest west of Chicago.

The Value of Rare Orchids

A consignment of hybrid orchids from England for the J. B. Coryell orchid collection down on the peninsula, near San Mateo, once more calls attention to that fine and expensive hobby of Coryell and his wife, who is widely known among her friends as "the orchid lady."

While this most estimable couple have spent a fortune on these flowers, they do not support the contention of their enthusiastic friends that they have the finest collection of them in the United States. It probably ranks the seventh best in the world and second in importance in this country. The first in this country is generally conceded to be that of Mrs. George B. Wilson of Philadelphia. But if the latter can readily pick a dozen bouquets of orchids in a week, each worth from $1000 up to $2500, the Coryells can do almost equally as well from their collection, so varied in form and color and constantly fresh and virile are its flowers. It must be remembered, however, that though nearly all orchids are importations at the beginning, few, if any, of the imported plants are sold except to scientific collectors or for breeding. Only the hybrids are hardy enough to be valuable as bouquets for the florist's trade with the general public. The hybridization of orchids, according to Mr. Coryell, is an intricate but rapidly developing science. Often two orchids from widely separated localities are combined by hybridization and a plant developed which is suitable to the climate of the greenhouses of this coast, and of the temperate zone generally. The most valuable plant in the Coryell collection is an orchid of the white gigas variety that cost him $10,000. At the Coryell place, with the latest importation, there are now about 17,000 plants. It was a visit to the Coryell home which inspired poet George Sterling a year and more ago to name his new volume of poems "The House of Orchids" and dedicate it to the charming lady of the establishment.

Always Defied the Conventions

Mrs. Amy Crocker-Ashe-Gillig-Gouraud was the subject of discussion over a tea table at the St. Francis the other afternoon. She is too frequently mentioned in the Eastern dispatches and foreign cable news not to be often talked about here as well as elsewhere. Her recent reported engagement to the French actor, M. E. Demax, coupled with her indignant denial of the report as a canard, is the most recent excuse for local gossiping about her. Even as a girl in Sacramento, when Judge E. B. Crocker, her father, was alive and making the fortune she is in part now enjoying with zest, she was noted for her contempt of the conventions and as a decidedly original individual. Always popular with the men, she had many suitors in this city and Sacramento before Porter Ashe became her first husband. Much of her fortune was spent on her three husbands, and, while always leading the extravagance herself, it is said she is still a woman of wealth. Her escapades on this coast were tame compared with some of her performances of late years in New York, Europe and the Orient. She has done things that few other women would have dared to undertake. One clubman of this city is said to have been in her touring party when in Burma, she went out one night to see the sights dressed as a dancing girl. During the evening the party met some British army officers, and though Mrs. Gouraud did her best to imitate the words and actions of the native girls, one of the officers fathomed her disguise. Jumping up, he got a bowl of water, and with a napkin washed the paint from her face, precipitating a row. While in Tahiti on the same leisurely world tour, she insisted on wearing the native costume for several weeks, although it consisted of little more than a straw hat and one straw garment.

Mrs. Darling's Memoirs Are Safe

I am told that the local daily papers were mistaken in their statement that in the destruction by fire lately of Mrs. C. E. Maud's home at Monterey the manuscript of Mrs. John T. Darling's memoirs and the diary of San Francisco society for the past forty years on which they are based were destroyed. Mrs. Maud is the daughter of Mrs. Darling. Some time before the fire, Mrs. Darling, fortunately, had the memoirs and diary transferred to her home in this city. Whether, like the memoirs and diary of Mrs. Hitchcock, covering a period of the first twenty-seven years of local society life, now in the possession of her daughter, Mrs. Lillie Hitchcock Coit they will ever see the light of day in formal published form is another question. Parts of Mrs. Hitchcock's diary, enough for three volumes, have long been in readiness for publication, but Mrs. Coit has for various reasons always stopped at that point. She, too, came near having them destroyed by fire at the time the Palace hotel burned in 1906. Those who say they know assert that Ambrose Bierce saw this material for three volumes some years ago and after a perusal of it remarked that if he were a rich man he would give $100,000 to see it in book form. It is said to be possessed of much interesting narrative, enlivened with flashes of wit and lots of dry sarcasm, about the men and women who were jovial lights in the years ago. Those who in a later day and still consider themselves the ultra exclusive were the climbers then, or about to become such, and are so treated in the narrative. As plain speaking, a habit of never mincing matters, together with a possession of strong likes and dislikes, are a strong card with Mrs. Darling, presumably her memoirs make an equally spicy tale of San Francisco society—one, in addition, that comes well up to this year of grace. Much in the Darling diary is said to throw an interesting sidelight on many events in this city and state, social and otherwise, and is set down with much charm and directness of expression. If she writes as she speaks at times, Mrs. Darling's memoirs would be certainly worth reading, for she once remarked:

HAS SPENT FOR
LIBRARIES $4,000,000

"I don't want to know anything about Burlingame—who is prominent there or who isn't; but knowing the histories of the various families and being an old San Franciscan, I know them from A to Z."

Press Club Plans for Building

It is fitting that the Press Club of this city should have a modern clubhouse of its own and in such a central location as the site at the southwest corner of Sutter and Powell.

The latter street, now the eastern limit of the best of the city's night life, claims quite a number of flourishing clubs on or near it—including the Family, University, Elks and Southern. The personnel of the Press Club today, both in its active and associate membership, is very high. Under the presidency of W. W. Naughton, the well-known sporting writer, now in the early months of his third term, the institution is prospering more than ever before. It has a wise provision that only active newspaper men, or those who were in the harness when they joined, shall have the right to vote. This maintains for its distinctive character. In 1872, when the first Press Club was formed, all members could vote. It soon ceased to be such a club on that account, becoming soon afterwards what is now the Bohemian Club. Former Supreme Court Justice Ralph Harrison, Raphael Weill and one or two others were of the Press Club of those days when it changed into the Bohemian Club.

The present Press Club dates from the late eighties and was organized at a small meeting of reporters in an office on Second street, near Market. Josiah M. Ward, now the managing editor of Senator Patterson's Denver Republican, was its first president. Franklin K. Lane, now a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, was a charter member. Since then the institution has entertained many celebrities, including every President of the United States who has visited the city. In its early and struggling career, Bill Nye, James Whitcomb Riley, Marshal P. Wilder, Lillian Russell, Patti, Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett and others honored it with their presence, giving it a name and a fame when those things were most needed to place it squarely on its feet as a feature of the club life of the town.

San Franciscan to Wed Belle

I see that Mgr. Shahan, a very distinguished prelate of the Catholic Church and rector of Catholic University at Georgetown, near Washington, D. C., is to officiate on Wednesday, November 7, at the wedding of a San Franciscan with a belle of the national capital, Miss Grassie V. Buckley. The groom-to-be is Bayard Hyde-Smith, a son of one of the local society leaders, Mrs. Eleanor Hyde-Smith. The prospective bride is the daughter of Mrs. William Andrew Gill, the wife of Captain Gill, U. S. N., who is one of the strong and popular characters of the service today. Numbers of the local relatives of young Hyde-Smith have gone on to attend the wedding and reception. The Eastern press is giving considerable notice to the affair as being a fashionable event. The ceremony is to be held at the swell Portland apartments, and Captain Gill is represented as hurrying home from Nicaragua to attend the wedding. The young couple first met in Honolulu a couple of years ago and again in the national capital, where the prospective groom found it convenient to visit relatives. They are to make a long honeymoon tour in Europe and finally come to this coast to live. People who keep track of such things say this is the first wedding of a San Franciscan society man in the national capital in many a year.

Endowment of St. Luke's Hospital

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, wife of the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, will soon come here to attend the dedication of new buildings of St. Luke's Hospital out in the warm belt of the Mission. Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Lewis F. Montague of this city have made it possible for this old hospital of the city to take on modern clothes to the extent of a million dollars. So they have been the means of enabling it to keep abreast of much rivalry in this field, for a lot of new hospitals have come to the front of late years with plenty of money behind them. It is particularly fitting that Mrs. Reid and her brother, Ogden Mills, the children of the late D. O. Mills, should do an act of this kind on the coast. The father made much of his vast fortune in this section of California. He left no bequest of any charitable nature for any purpose in this State, or anywhere else for that matter. The omission

WHY DON'T YOU TAKE BETTER CARE OF YOUR HAIR?
Don't let it turn grey. Don't let the Dandruff get a foothold and start the hair falling out.
It's not natural that young women should have thin grey hair that they cannot dress becomingly.

It should always be natural-colored—luxuriant—full of life and radiance—free from ugly grey hairs and annoying Dandruff. Nature intended that a woman's hair should be one of her chief attractions.

Why not help her to keep it so?

FILE PETITIONS UP TO JAN. 1914

Legal Opinion Concerning the Supplementary Documents Filed.

SACRAMENTO Nov. 2.—In a long opinion covering many pages of typewritten paper the attorney-general today held that supplementary petitions to initiative measures seeking to place proposed acts before the people for approval, may be filed in the office of the Secretary of State up to January 1914.

This question comes in answer to the question presented concerning the poll tax initiative which proposes to repeal the tax asking when supplementary petitions shall be cut off.

Under the opinion all the initiative measure—such as anti-price fight, state market exchange or producers' exchange, and others—still have a chance to qualify for the next general election after next Tuesday by filing the required 31,000 signatures.

Coryza-Influenza. The uncertainties of autumn weather have caused an epidemic of Influenza and Coryza, according to the Health Department.

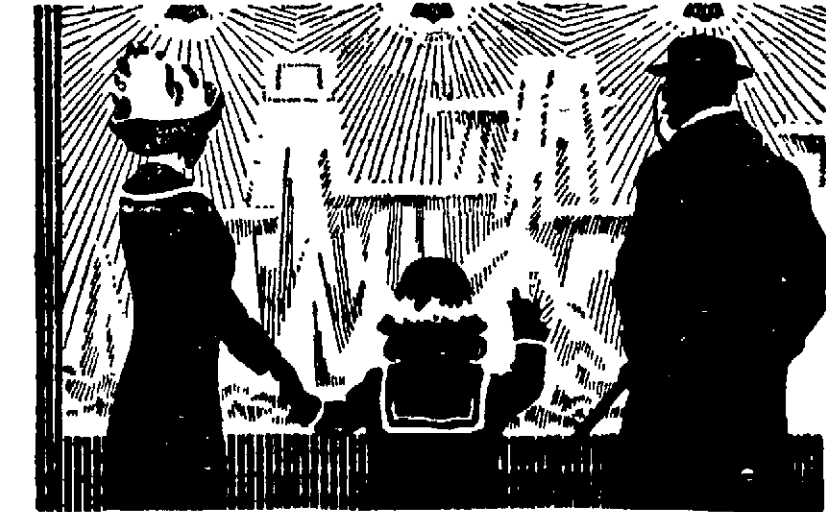

It especially affects persons of advanced age and men and women whose constitutions had previously been weakened.

It is known by lassitude, shiverings, weight in the head, sneezing watery eyes, obstruction of nostrils, followed by cough, hoarseness and sore throat, pains and soreness of limbs, fever, loss of appetite.

It is not when the body is hot, but when it is cooling that it is most susceptible.

DEMOCRATS ARE IN AN OPTIMISTIC MOOD

National Chairman McCombs Confident That Party Will Win on Tuesday Next

(By WILLIAM F. McCOMBS, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The Democratic forces never entered a battle with more united strength or more confident of victory than they will on November 5.

We have waged the contest along the lines that we believed to be of the greatest advantage to the American people. It is now up to the voters. To tell where we are strongest is a task beyond me, or any other conscientious Democrat who has been in the midst of this fight.

Governor Wilson started off with a tremendous lead over the other candidates and while it was freely predicted that he might lose some of his strength, there has been no break in the Democratic column.

The South will again be united for the Democratic ticket. The returns we have had from all the Southern states indicate that the Wilson and Marshall vote will be the largest ever given a Democratic candidate.

THE CALIFORNIA SITUATION

While some extremely conservative persons may include California in the debatable column, we are confident of carrying it for governor Wilson. We have to overcome a lead of practically 87,000 votes in California, but the division among the Republican party is so great and the support of the Democratic ticket has been so enthusiastic that we have every right to believe that we will carry the state.

Colorado will increase its majority of 3000 at the last election, while not less than 15,000 for Wilson and Marshall.

Connecticut is a hotly contested state and while we have to overcome a large majority we have every confidence that we can do it.

Bryan received 22,000 votes in Delaware at the last election, while Taft received 25,000. The split in the Republican ranks gives us this state by a safe majority.

CONTEST IN ILLINOIS

Illinois has been one of the most bitterly contested states. The Republicans carried this state the last time by one vote less than 180,000. That is a big lead to overcome, but we can do it and Illinois will be ours by 25,000 to 50,000 majority.

Indiana is safely for Wilson and Marshall and we will have the biggest Democratic majority ever given a candidate.

Our reports from Iowa are most enthusiastic and we are not wavering over the results in that state. Iowa can be safely put down for Wilson and Marshall.

Maine had but 3000 Republican majority in the September election with both factions of the Republican party united. Divided, as they now are on national lines, the state will certainly cast its electoral vote for Wilson.

Maryland is safely in the Democratic column and we will elect the six congressional candidates from that state.

In Massachusetts we have to overcome a large Republican majority but the split in the Republican ranks insures Democratic success. The Democratic outlook could not be brighter.

There is no doubt over Missouri. Michigan, Minnesota and Montana are all states in which we have made remarkable gains and we hope to find them in the Democratic column on election day.

Neb. and Nevada will remain in the Democratic column.

NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY

New York and New Jersey are beyond question safe for Wilson and Marshall. We anticipate coming down to Manhattan with a majority of 70,000 for the Democratic ticket. This should give us New York state by 250,000.

Ohio is just as safe for the Democratic ticket as any of the Southern states, and I firmly believe that we will have the largest majority in Ohio ever given a Democratic candidate.

Pennsylvania is going to be the scene of a remarkable three-cornered fight. This state with its 30,000 majority, has been the scene of one of the most strenuous contests ever conducted by the Democrats and all our reports indicate that we not only have the united Democratic vote of half a million, but have gained tens of thousands of other votes. Wilson will lead Roosevelt with Taft third.

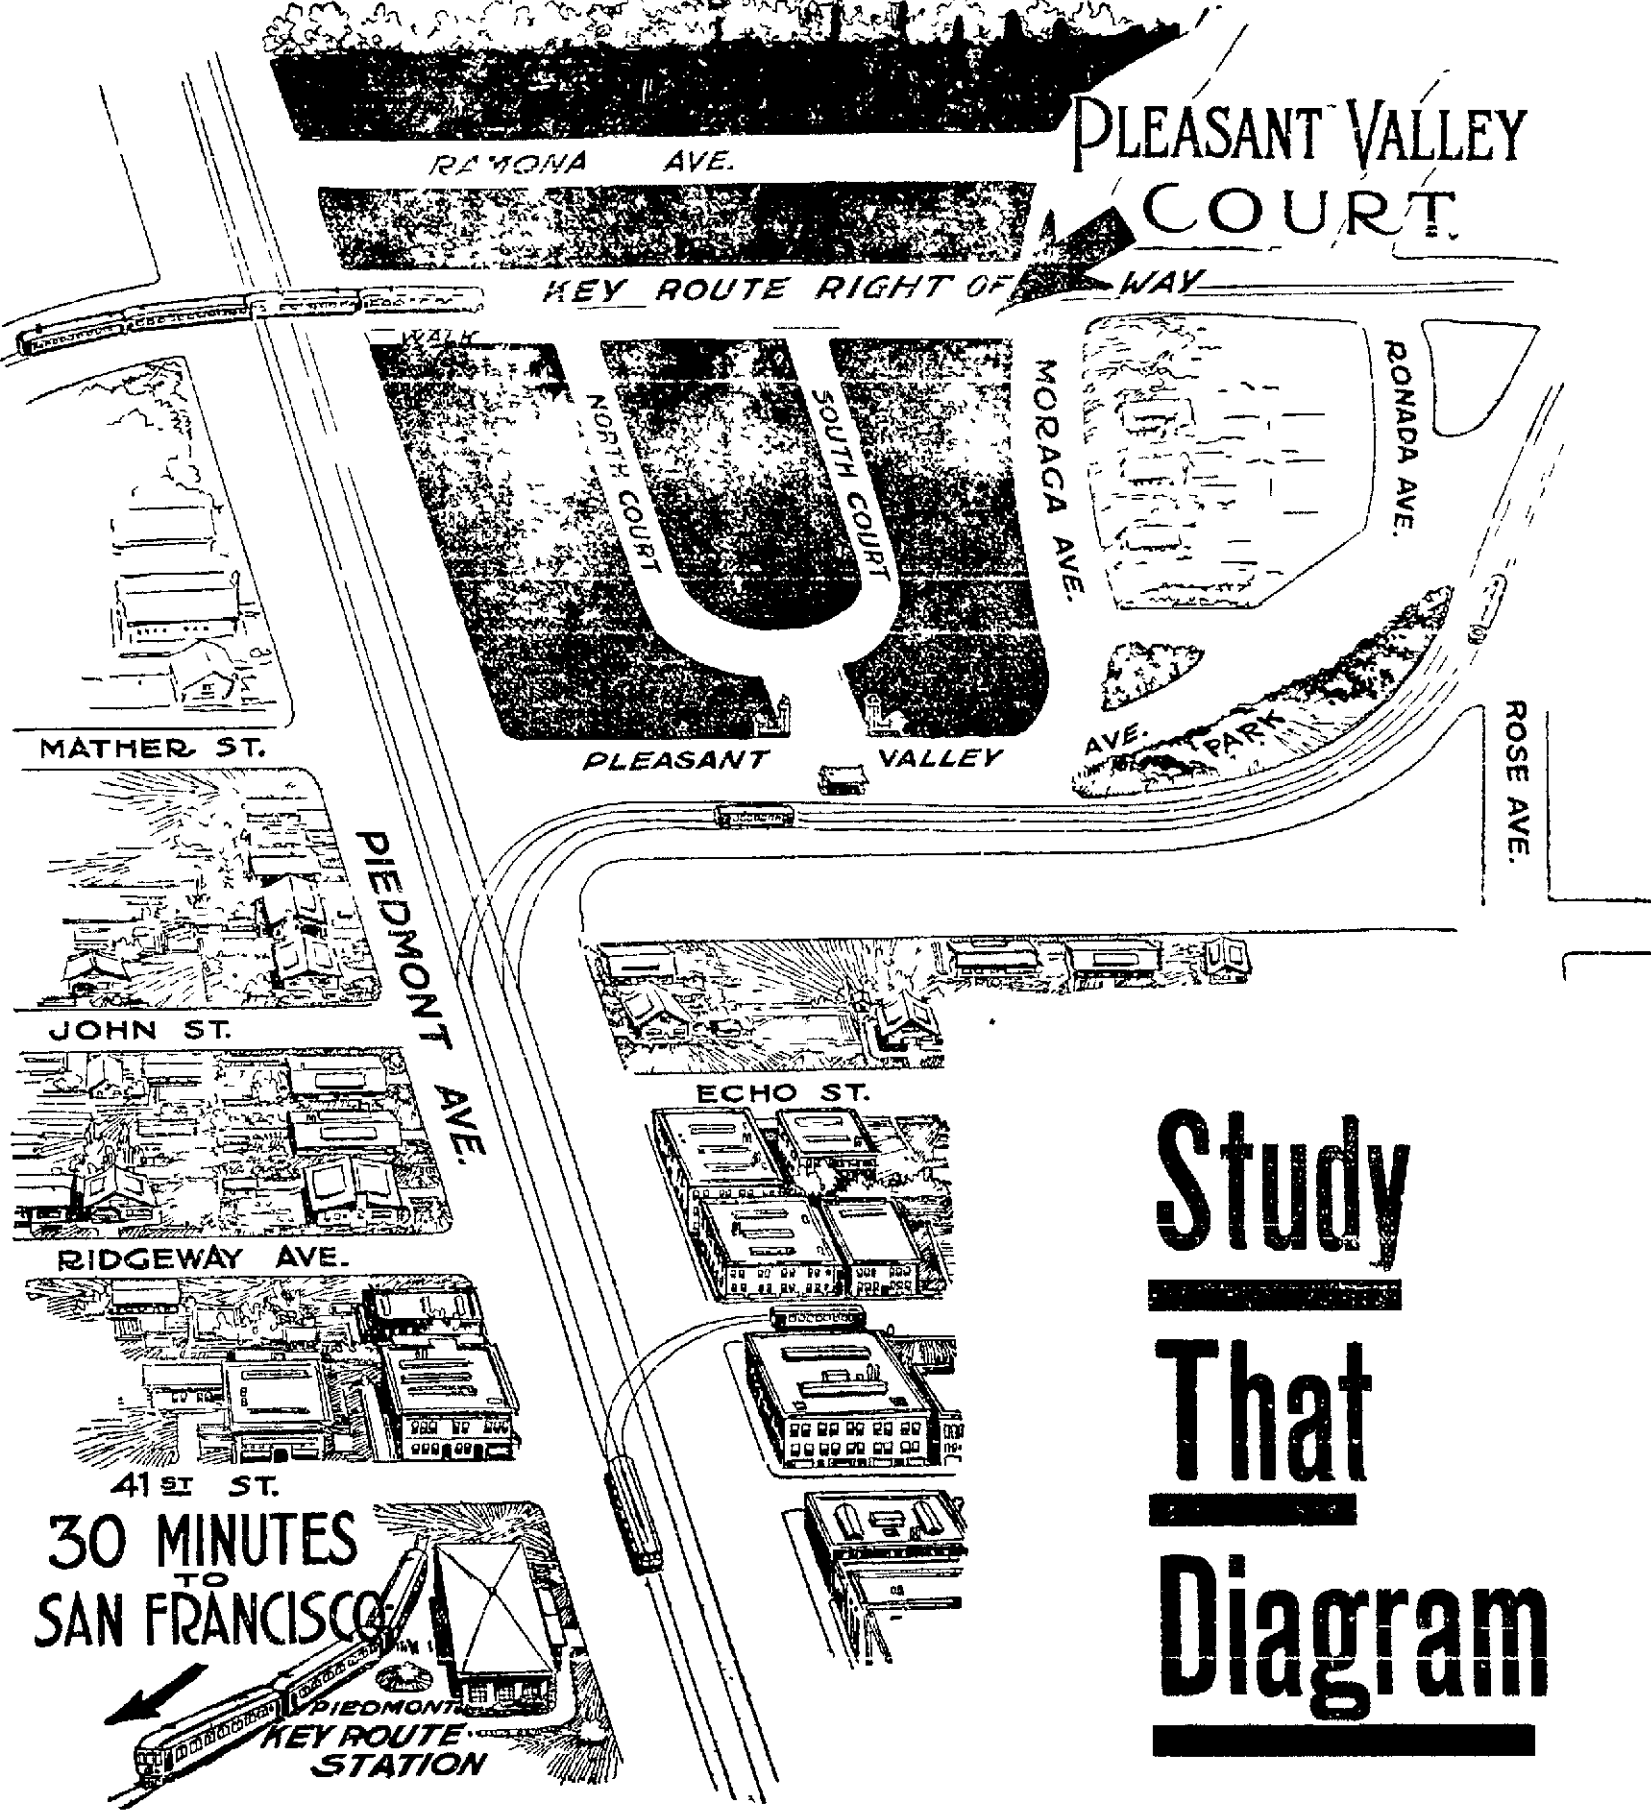

Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming show no indications of not getting in the Democratic column.

Pre-election predictions do not make votes. We have endeavored not to deceive ourselves over the outlook, but the indications have been so uniformly favorable that the Democratic party sees nothing but victory. Tuesday it is in our hands and we must take nothing for granted.

We shall not be surprised to find every electoral vote of every state for Wilson and Marshall. The Republican party is united. The Republican party is driven into fragments and cannot hope to succeed this year.

30 MINUTES TO SAN FRANCISCO

KEY ROUTE STATION

It's a birdseye of the district in which PLEASANT VALLEY COURT is located and shows better than words the relation of the tract to local and San Francisco transportation.

It should particularly appeal to the man whose time is worth something, for it tells a story of rapid transit from the tract to the city across the bay, by a line noted for its dependability.

The Piedmont or Fortieth Street Key Route is one of the best traveled branches of the system and draws from a wide area at its terminal. Thousands of commuters use it daily and endeavor to make their homes as close to it as possible.

Apartment houses, flats and rented homes house the greater number of its patrons. This is due not to the fact that these commuters do not want homes of their own, but rather for the reason that up to the present time it has been almost impossible to obtain satisfactory building lots within easy walking distance without paying exorbitant prices for them.

But PLEASANT VALLEY COURT, within three blocks of this terminus, is to fill the want and supply the demand.

It offers a variety of homesites ranging in price from $17.50 to $30.00 per foot. They are all restricted, wide and slightly. The subdivision plan is modern and yet unique. It favors the width rather than the depth of the lots and permits the employment of more artistic effects in home building.

The streets are well paved, sidewalks are six feet wide, and like the curbs and gutters, are constructed of concrete.

On the rear of lots is an electrical reserve for power and light poles, and all water mains are just inside the sidewalk line.

Palms, poplars and shrubs are being used to effective advantage in the parking spaces and little touches of color here and there aid in making the general appearance of the property different from the usual order of hit-and-miss subdivision.

It's part of our work to know how all these details can best be carried out and buyers are to receive the benefit.

If some tracts had nothing more than a street car passing every half hour to serve the purpose of transportation, the owners would probably give the fact more prominence than we attach to the significant feature that three stations of the Piedmont avenue cars are in PLEASANT VALLEY COURT.

Even this is not our greatest attraction. It consists of a combination of transportation facilities of both trolley and Key Route, together with the most substantial feature of all, the extremely low price.

Why, man! You've got to watch the evolution of the six homes we are now building, and picture the development of the next six months before you can appreciate just how vital it is for you to get in on the ground floor.

The investment will not be spread out over a discouraging period and we look for a number of quick turns.

Your rent money—or less—will buy a home in PLEASANT VALLEY COURT all ready to occupy by the time you want it. Then why pay out good money every month, without even a faint hope of ever getting any of it back?

Any man or woman who can save from $7 to $20 per month can find no better investment than a lot in PLEASANT VALLEY COURT. It creates the incentive for thrift—which is a forerunner of independence, and the success which goes with it.

This opportunity is one which is rapidly passing.

Will you let yours go by?

Good Men for Supervisors.

The assured re-election of Supervisors Mullins, Foss and Murphy is a guarantee that the county government for the next four years will be conducted with efficiency and economy. Messrs. Mullins, Foss and Murphy have been tried and have proved faithful. They have made good. Their re-election will be a testimonial of appreciation, a mark of public confidence.

So long as John F. Mullins, Fred W. Foss and Daniel J. Murphy are in control of the county's affairs, the taxpayers can rest assured that there will be no waste of public money and that the public business will be transacted with promptitude and efficiency. There will be no graft, no extravagance for political promotion; no sinecure jobs for political workers.

The county's finances will be kept in order and the county's affairs administered in a business-like manner and in strict conformity with law. The various county structures will be kept in a decent state of repair, the county roads improved and kept up, and the county revenues conserved.

Every taxpayer can appreciate this kind of service—the kind that gives a dollar's worth of value for every dollar expended. It is service rendered in accordance with business principles and with a proper regard for the public welfare.

Since they have become members of the County Board of Supervisors they have been zealous in the discharge of their official duties. They have saved the taxpayers money wherever they could practice economy without lowering the standard of service. In insisting that all business transacted by the board or under its direction shall be open, regular, orderly and in strict conformity with law, they have effected a salutary reform.

Not the least of their services can be counted their efforts to suppress disreputable road houses, in which they have had the hearty co-operation of District Attorney Donahue. They have consistently refused to re-license saloons conducted in a disorderly manner, and in which liquor is sold to minors.

In short, they have stood for moral cleanliness as well as efficiency and economy, and have given the administration of county affairs a character becoming to an enlightened and decent community. They have done this because they are men of character and decent instincts who feel a proper sense of responsibility to the public. The certainty that they will continue to hold their offices is a gratifying proof that the people are not ungrateful for good service.

Not only does the future prosperity of the east bay shore cities depend on the preservation of their integrity as self-governing communities, but that part of the State tributary to San Francisco bay is vitally interested in the protection and perpetuation of honest commercial competition on its shores which is menaced by the initiative consolidation amendment to Section 7 of Article XI of the Constitution which, if adopted, will give San Francisco the opportunity of acquiring a complete monopoly of every foot of its commercial waterfront through a simple majority vote which that city will have no scruples of securing through coercion, intimidation, colonization and other devious methods within its power to apply as the most populous unit in any consolidation of the bay cities which can be accomplished for the organization of a new city and county government. In defense of the maintenance of commercial competition in perpetuity on San Francisco bay every consumer, producer and shipper tributary to it should, therefore, in self-interest vote "NO" on the proposed amendment, the sixth in order printed on the ballot.

A. A. Rogers Entitled to Re-election.

When a public official performs his duty ably and well it is a grave reflection upon the intelligence of his constituency that there should be any question about his re-election to office. There can be and should be, no other reward for a faithful official than that made possible by the ballot box, the verdict by which the public is able to keep good men as their representatives, and remove those who have proved incapable or false to their oaths of office.

In view of the well-established fact that A. A. Rogers, Assemblyman from the Thirty-sixth District, has made a splendid record as a capable, honest and progressive legislator, there should be no doubt of his return to that office.

Rogers is peculiarly well qualified to represent his native district of San Leandro. He grew to manhood in this county, has the confidence of the people of his district, knows their needs, and is thoroughly competent to fight their cause on the floor of the State Assembly. He is a young, vigorous man, with plenty of laudable ambition, and a keen desire to promote the welfare of the working man and the small home owner. His experience as a deputy under District Attorney William H. Donahue has given him a keen insight into the needs of the community. He is, himself, a member of the bar of Alameda county. The people of his district know that Rogers is not an unknown quantity. He has demonstrated during his term in the Assembly that he is competent to represent fittingly that portion of Alameda county which claims him for her own.

As chairman of the Town and County Government Committee at the last Legislature, Rogers handled a tremendous volume of important legislation, besides being an active member of a dozen important committees.

If he is returned to Sacramento to continue his efforts it will be with the backing of his experience and the recognition already gained amongst his fellow associates. This will bring him important assignments that will make his influence the more powerful and in consequence give his home district the benefit of such representation.

No one can accuse A. A. Rogers of being tied to the apron-strings of any man or any interest. Those who know him, understand that he is independent, fearless and thoroughly imbued with a sense of duty at all times. If that were not so, he would not be entrusted with the responsibilities that have been his under such an acknowledged champion of the people as District Attorney Donahue. The latter's commendation of Assemblyman Rogers should alone stamp the latter as a man worthy of public confidence.

But Rogers has himself proved his worth. He can safely point to his record as reason for expecting the reward to which he is entitled. The people of the Thirty-sixth District are not likely to be fooled. They elected Rogers once and he has made good. It is now up to them to say so—and they will.

SONNY IS DOING VERY WELL, THANK YOU

—BY THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE CARTOONIST.

Asking Help From the Smitten.

Two years ago when San Francisco was trying to get the Wolfe annexation bill through the Legislature, we warned our neighbors across the bay that they were alienating the friendly aid they expected Alameda county to give the Panama-Pacific Exposition. The people of Oakland were willing and anxious to help make the exposition a success, but they would not move to raise a fund while San Francisco was trying to annex them by unfair means. Despite the warning, the San Franciscans persisted in conspiring against the peace and liberties of the Alameda cities.

The expected has happened. Mr. Charles C. Moore, president of the exposition corporation, calls upon Oakland for the million-dollar contribution a few individuals enthusiastically promised before the annexation grab was inaugurated. Naturally President Moore's request falls on stony ground. The people of Oakland have been so goaded and angered that they will not listen to the suggestion that they give financial assistance to San Francisco's big show.

We are sorry the condition exists, but San Francisco is reaping what she has sown. She has provoked anger and resentment, and well-nigh destroyed the amicable feeling which has heretofore subsisted between the two cities. Had San Francisco refrained from meddling with our affairs and not attempted to lay violent hands on our rights, the people of Oakland would gladly come forward with aid for the exposition. But they have been treated as enemies to be subdued, and they will do nothing.

It is very unfortunate, but the condition is none of our making. However, the old fraternal feeling can be restored by abandoning this annexation scheme and letting the domestic affairs of this county alone.

Let there be no doubt left at the close of the polls next Tuesday that the people of California will not tolerate the extinguishment of the identity of the independent, prosperous and progressive cities on the eastern shore of San Francisco bay which are working out their destiny on broad and intelligent lines, nor the suppression of commercial competition on its tidewaters to gratify the greed or ambitions of any city for political power or commercial supremacy through the suppression of commercial competition and the perpetuation of a commercial monopoly which has retarded the development and prosperity of the producers, shippers and consumers of the State for over sixty years, by every one voting "NO" on the initiative amendment, sixth on the ballot, which has been framed expressly by San Francisco to gobble up all the communities in the bay region and acquire control of the commercial waterfront thereof.

The stuffing of San Francisco's great register with 20,000 fraudulent names seems to have been the natural and probably premeditated result of padding the census population of San Francisco in 1910 when the population of contiguous communities was merged in that city's census enumeration. It has taken five years to hatch San Francisco's initiative consolidation amendment, but the people have been so thoroughly informed as to the real purposes behind it that the measure is sure to be defeated. The deviousness of the exposure of a great register stuffed with at least 20,000 fraudulent votes, shows to what extremes the promoters of the proposed consolidation amendment will resort to carry out their plot against the east bay shore cities and the State.

California has no desire to be Tammanized by San Francisco or any other city as Greater New York has Tammanized New York State and it will undoubtedly show that fact on Tuesday next by emphatically rejecting San Francisco's initiative amendment to Section 7 of Article XI which makes Tammany control by it possible if adopted.

PERSONALITIES

Lady Dorothy Nevill in her lately published volume of reminiscences relates how Queen Victoria once rebuked a certain mistress of the robes for unpunctuality. A day and hour had been appointed for a public ceremony in which the queen was to take part. The hour had arrived and of all the court the duchess alone was absent. At last, just as the queen was about to enter her carriage without her first lady of honor, the duchess in breathless haste made her appearance, stammering out faint words of excuse. "My dear duchess," said the queen, smiling, "I think you must have had a bad watch," and she unlocked from her neck the chain of a magnificent watch which she herself wore, and passed it around the neck of the offender.

Lord Dufferin delivered an address before the Greek class of the McGill university, about which a reporter wrote: "His lordship spoke to the class in the purest ancient Greek, without mispronouncing a word or making the slightest grammatical solecism." "Good Heavens!" remarked Sir Hector Langevin to the late Sir John Macdonald, "how did the reporter know that?" "I told him," was the conservative statesman's answer. "But you don't know Greek." "True, but I know a little about politics."

Every wise cavalry officer keeps a sharp eye upon the horses of his command, as the success of the next engagement may depend upon their good condition. A sergeant was out of patience with an awkward recruit. "Never approach the horses from behind without speaking!" he exclaimed. "If you do, they'll kick you in that thick head of yours and the end of it will be that we shall have nothing but lame horse sin that squadron."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

The more some women talk the less they seem to think. Occasionally a man commands respect by merely looking wise. It is an easy matter for the average man to live down his salary. In choosing a wife, young man, use your ears as well as your eyes. An optimist is a man who is thankful for a lot of things he doesn't get. Many a man's real reason for going downtown every evening is that he is married to the wrong woman. Heaven is probably the one place where "central" will always give you the right number. It's almost as dangerous to be on friendly terms with a gossip as it is to be on unfriendly terms with one. It has been said that marriages are arranged in heaven, but at the present writing it looks as if most are fixed up by the girl's mother.—Chicago News.

WITTY BITS

The Harvard professor who has discovered the secret of making hot tea completely demolishes the theory that hail never freezes over. Before Congress adjourns it should pass a bill reimbursing Beverly for losses sustained by reason of Mr. Taft's enforced sojourn in Washington. There is no need for District Attorney Whitman to bar the police from receiving any of those $2500 rewards for Louie and Grip, as they wouldn't do the job for such a cheap figure. In criticizing Wilson because he was a prodigious Jim Mann overlooked the fact that the biographies of half of his colleagues disclose that they once presided over little red schoolhouses.—Washington Post.

White and Black Increase—a Comparison

An argument for sanitary reform is found by the Galveston News in the vital statistics collected by the census bureau. The relative decline in the colored population of the old slave States affords the News a text for demanding amelioration of the conditions which it holds responsible for the declining fecundity and the heavy mortality—altogether disproportionate to the mortality among whites—of the negro race.

With a declining birth rate and an abnormally high death rate, the colored people are rapidly falling behind in the population increase. In the decade from 1900 to 1910, the percentage of colored increase was only about half that of the whites, and the showing for the negroes was little better in the South Atlantic group, where the white population is not reinforced by immigration. In Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri, the colored population has actually decreased since 1900. The increase was merely nominal in Virginia, and less than fifty per cent of the white increase in North Carolina. In South Carolina, the whites have increased seventy per cent during the last thirty years as compared with a negro increase of thirty-eight per cent. In Mississippi the white increase was sixty-three per cent as compared with a negro gain of fifty-four per cent. But the most significant fact of all is that the percentage of white increase is growing larger year by year, while the black percentage shows a steady falling off.

In 1900 the whites in North Carolina outnumbered the negroes by 639,134; in 1910, the white lead was 802,770. In Texas the white majority in 1900 was 1,805,847; in 1910 it was 2,514,876. In 1900 the white majority in Alabama was only 173,845; in 1910 it was 320,566. In 1900 the whites of Arkansas had a majority of 577,824; in 1910 they had a majority of 688,139. In 1900 the whites of Georgia outnumbered the negroes by 146,471; in 1910 the white majority had grown to 254,829. In 1900 Louisiana had 78,808 more whites than blacks; in 1910 the white preponderance was 227,251. In 1880 a majority of the inhabitants of Louisiana were colored.

In South Carolina and Mississippi the negroes are considerably in the majority, but at the present rate of population gain the whites will outnumber the blacks in those States in thirty years.

The meaning of these figures is that the fear of black supremacy is baseless. That it is passing from the Southern mind is shown by the sentiments expressed by the Galveston News. That journal wants the colored race conserved, and hence advocates sanitary laws which will arrest the death rate among the colored race. It is a singular fact that the negroes have declined in fecundity ever since emancipation. Much higher than among whites in slavery days, it has steadily declined till it has fallen below the white birth rate. The colored death rate is nearly double the white. To these causes of relative decline must be added the steady drift of colored people from the South to the Northern States. The border Northern States are gaining in colored population at the expense of the border Southern States. Mississippi and Arkansas have to some extent drawn on the older Southern States for some of their negro inhabitants. But taking the Southern States as a whole, the growth of white population is much faster than the growth of the black. Hence the negro is not the potent industrial factor that he once was, and his diminishing numbers in some sections has aroused concern in unexpected quarters.

Oakland has a priceless inheritance in its waterfront which has been given it so that it may be improved for the benefit of the State's commerce by maintaining commercial competition by land and sea on the shores of San Francisco bay. Not only should every voter in Oakland rally to its defense on Tuesday next, by voting against the initiative amendment to Section 7 of Article XI of the State Constitution, but every voter in the interior counties should do likewise also.

The Third Term Issue.

No new reason has been offered why the third-term precedent should be set aside. That precedent was set by Washington, and endorsed by Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln.

When his friends were urging him for a third term, General Grant privately expressed his doubts of the wisdom of giving Presidents a second term, even. He reluctantly consented to be a candidate to please friends like Roscoe Conkling, who represented to him that their political future depended upon his allowing his name to be used again. He did not want to run and was in favor of observing the Washington precedent.

The nation refused to assent to the arrangement, however, and General Grant was subjected to the humiliation of being defeated in the Republican convention for another nomination. Nevertheless he and his friends loyally supported General Garfield, who was triumphantly elected with their aid.

Blaine, Sumner, Carl Schurz, George William Curtis and George F. Edmunds were all opposed to the third-term proposition.

Edmunds, the sole survivor of that group of distinguished Republicans, is still opposed to it, and says the present crisis has only served to strengthen his conviction that it is dangerous and revolutionary to depart from the precedent set by the Father of his Country. To set it aside, in his opinion, will pave the way for life tenure in the Presidential office and the establishment of dynastic and monarchical institutions.

When Colonel Roosevelt stepped on the platform at Madison Square Garden, he was cheered forty-two minutes. Four years ago Bryan was cheered ninety minutes at Denver. But he was not elected President. Experience has abundantly proved that the cheers of admirers do not elect a candidate. Henry Clay was wildly cheered in 1844, but James K. Polk beat him at the polls. James G. Blaine was hailed with tremendous applause, but Grover Cleveland won the election. No candidate for the Presidency ever drew larger crowds or was more enthusiastically cheered than William J. Bryan, but he was overwhelmingly defeated every time he ran. Spectacular campaigns have never been winning ones. Nevertheless it is gratifying that Colonel Roosevelt has so far recovered from his wound as to appear in public and greet his devoted adherents.

Oakland and the east bay shore cities expect every fair-minded citizen in the State to perform his and her duty at the polls on Tuesday by voting "NO" on San Francisco's initiative consolidation amendment to the Constitution.

HUNDREDS OF MOTORISTS REJOICING OVER DUBLIN CANYON REOPENING

TOURING OVER NEW BOULEVARD A DELIGHT

Alameda County Justly Proud of Splendid Movement It Has Fathered

There is great rejoicing in the hearts of hundreds of motorists in the bay region, and particularly those of this city, when they learn that the Dublin canyon, which has been closed for so long, is now open to the public. The new boulevard, which is a masterpiece of engineering and construction, has been opened to the public, and the joy of the motorists is unbounded. The new boulevard is a masterpiece of engineering and construction, and it is a great pleasure to the motorists to be able to travel over it. HAYWARD TO FOLLOW SUIT

While the plans of the Alameda county governing board were carried out to the letter, there still remains an uncompleted part to the whole of the canyon road. This is a gap at the Dublin end of the boulevard and another at the Hayward end. The latter undoubtedly comes under the jurisdiction of the municipality of Hayward, and it is predicted that it is only a question of a very short time until that city will bring the Canyon boulevard right up to the Foothill boulevard, which now terminates at H street. Complaints from citizens in the other end of the canyon, near Dublin, will probably call for some immediate action to complete the boulevard to that point.

Those who toured through Dublin canyon two years ago, and who have since remained away from that alluring spot, are now flocking to the canyon, and the joy of the motorists is unbounded. The new boulevard is a masterpiece of engineering and construction, and it is a great pleasure to the motorists to be able to travel over it. COST OVER $100,000.
The supervisors sent County Surveyor Percy Haviland out over the course with his implements, and that active individual came back with a report briefly setting forth that about $100,000 would do the job. A little more than that amount was immediately made available, and those who may doubt that a good job was done, need only journey down to Hayward and take a peep at what has taken place in the canyon for the past two years.

TIRES REDUCE BATTERY COST

The Salesmen's Conference Announces Important News to Electric Owners.

AKRON, Ohio, Nov. 2.—One of the most important developments of the annual conference of salesmen of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, just concluded, was the announcement of the perfection of a tire which would reduce battery consumption per mile by at least 12 per cent.

The new tire, which is interchangeable on pneumatic rims, whether standard clincher or quick detachable clincher, is said to revolutionize the solid tire industry. It is of the dual tread type, and extra resilient.

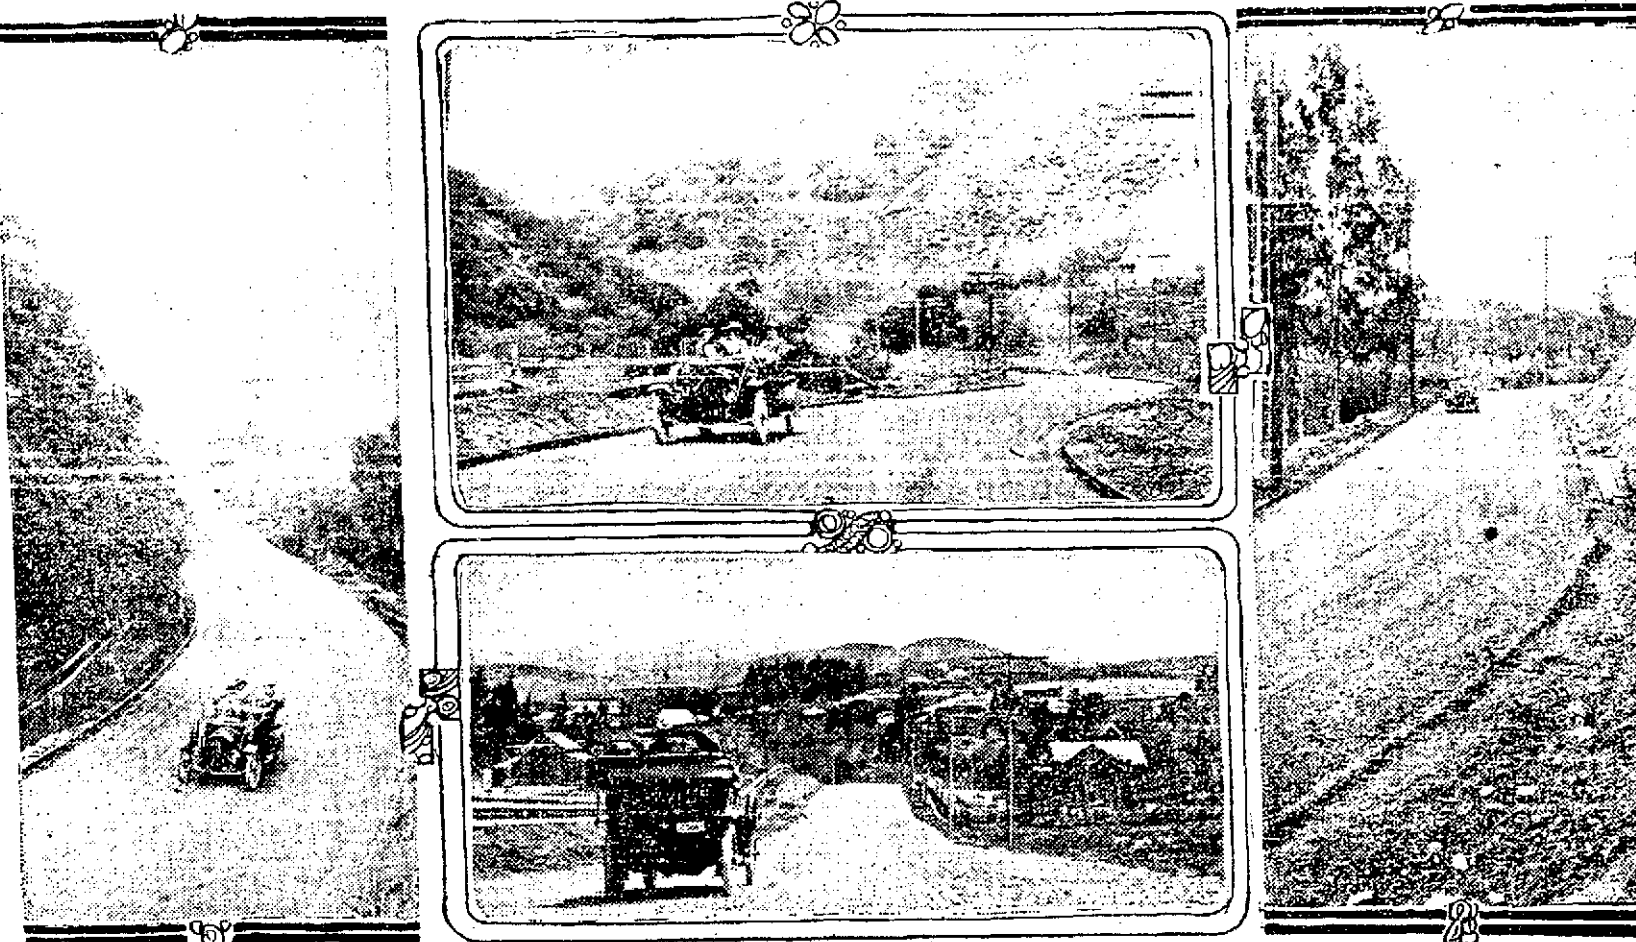

It is a well known fact that the bearing surface of a tire has much to do with the amount of electric current consumed by the car. Too little bearing surface, on the other hand, causes friction which will retard the car, and waste electric current by this resistance.

As shown by the Firestone company, and proven by electric car manufacturers, this new tire, it is claimed, by a scientific exactness of resiliency and consequent bearing surface, avoids both pitfalls.

MIDLAND TRAIL TO REACH SOUTH BY DECEMBER 1

Three Transcontinental Routes Mapped Out Last Spring Near Completion.

PATHFINDER WESTGARD NEAR SALT LAKE CITY

Road Improvement Follows Along Routes Where Auto-ists Increase Travel.

Between Denver and Salt Lake City the A. A. A. transcontinental traveler is now engaged on the last of the three cross-country routes being laid out this year by the Touring Information Board of the American Automobile Association. Leaving New York October 1, Pathfinder A. L. Westgard progressed via Philadelphia, Reading, Harrisburg, Chambersburg, Bedford and Greensburg to Pittsburgh, taking road notes for the only complete transcontinental route across Pennsylvania, the two previous cross country trips having been laid out through New York state.

Road improvement was found to be making rapid progress in the Keystone state, particularly across the Allegheny mountains between Bedford and Greensburg, where, in the past, through tourists have had their greatest troubles. In fact the best stretches between Pennsylvania's two important cities are now on the western end where a great deal of new road has been built during the last year by State Highway Commissioner Bigelow.

From Pittsburgh the route was chosen through Carnegie to Washington, Pa., where connection was made with the old national road to Wheeling, W. Va. While some portions of that road east of the Alleghenies are in very bad condition, the middle portion forms the main thoroughfare across central Ohio and central Indiana. The extreme western end of the national road through southern Illinois has been neglected for many years; but it is the direct and natural trunk line highway between Indianapolis, Terre Haute and St. Louis, and was therefore selected as part of the "Midland Trail."

Not only is road improvement making considerable progress in Illinois, but the selection of this stretch as a part of a great transcontinental highway must inevitably focus legislative attention upon its present condition and hasten its reconstruction, not only carrying out the original expectation of the federal government, but making an automobile throughfare of first importance. For one thing the important connections west of St. Louis require the improvement of the main highway to that city from the East. The route selected from St. Louis to Kansas City, Mo., is the most direct and practical one, and is being improved practically throughout. The Golden Belt road was followed across Kansas to Denver, whence the course leads through Buena Vista, Glenwood Springs, Rifle and Meeker, Col., to Salt Lake City and Milford, Utah; Ely, Tonopah and Goldfield, Nevada; Independence and Mojave, California, and not as bad as reported between Limon and Denver.

FINISH BY DECEMBER.

It is expected that Los Angeles will be reached before December 1, completing the three transcontinental automobile lines laid out last spring.

JAPANESE FIRM BUYS FEDERAL ONE-TON TRUCK

Recently a representative of Futaba & Co., Tokyo, Japan, conducted an investigation of American one-ton vehicles, with the result that an order was placed for a Federal of this capacity. The concern is a large exporter and importer, and is located in the Detroit product because of its simplicity and "over readiness."

'42' OAKLAND CAR CREATES STIR ON AUTO ROW

1913 Model Gets Welcome From Sales Agents and Buyers.

MANAGER HORNBERGER PLEASED AT RECEPTION

Five - Minute Demonstration Shows Individuality of New Factory Product.

The new model "42" Oakland car which was received the first of last week by the factory branch in this city created one of the greatest stir of the season. Early Monday morning Manager Henry L. Hornberger, head of the coast branch, had the pleasure of seeing the result of his 1913 advertising campaign in the daily papers. Long before he arrived from his home on the peninsula all the near-by Oakland agents and a large number of motorists were on hand at the salesroom. The announcement of the arrival of the car had been read and the public wanted to see for themselves.

LANDSLIDE SALE.
It has been practically impossible to put the car on the salesroom floor. The selling force has been doing business in the curb, instead of in the headquarters. Agents and prospective buyers clamored for demonstrations. These were given of five minutes' duration. This was enough, however, to prove to those who were familiar with the Oakland line and the expert buyers the great value the model "42" offers this season.

During the week Manager Hornberger closed with several dealers in outside territory that had not already been taken. He also had the pleasure of increasing the allotment of several agents after they had seen the model "42," which gave them a good line of the models following.

CAUSES SENSATION.

In speaking of the first week of the 1913 season Manager Hornberger says: "I expected that the model '42' would cause a sensation when it reached here. I had seen it at the factory and knew well its worth, but really I must say I have been more than surprised at the flattering reception it has received. It is due the car, for the factory has turned out a machine this year that has style, finish, speed and power, and will bear comparison with any on the market. It has an individuality of its own, and once you have seen it you are never liable to mistake it for any other make. We have a number of cars already on the road, and the most of them have been sold. The factory is hurrying other shipments to meet the present demand."

KEENER DEMAND NOW FOR HIGH GRADE CARS

That there is a keener demand for high-grade automobiles this fall than at any previous time, is the unqualified opinion of B. C. Spitzley, assistant general manager of the Abbott Motor Company. "This statement is not alone based upon the thriving and increased business of the Abbott Motor Company," he says, "but is a close analysis of conditions as they everywhere exist. There is a tremendous demand for high-grade cars, and it is only with extreme difficulty that manufacturers can handle the situation and keep the trade from discontent until orders can be filled. Every dealer is out to sell as many machines as he can, and is not always given to pleasant thoughts when he learns that a certain model has been overhauled before the order was received. All holders of higher priced cars definitely determine upon the output for the year at the beginning of each season, and this cannot be increased to take care of any unexpected flushes in business that may arise."

APPROACH OF WINTER BOOMS KNIGHT TIRES

With the advent of the rainy season motor car drivers will look to their tires so as to be prepared for skidding weather. D. W. McElligott, manager of the local branch of the Halliwell company, reports that his firm has received a shipment of the new Knight tires and that they are selling very rapidly. "The recent wet spell," said he, "has awakened many owners to the fact that winter will soon be upon them and it is well to be in shape to negotiate the slippery streets and muddy roads. Our non-skid tires are going rapidly and we feel very optimistic for the business outlook for the future."

HEAVY FALL CALL FOR NON-SKIDS

Imperial Garage Lays in Big Stock of Republic Stag-gard Treads.

Anticipating an early heavy fall demand for all sizes of Republic tires and particularly for the Stag-gard tread type, the Imperial Garage of this city, distributors for the Republic Rubber Company, has laid in one of the largest stock carried by any distributing firm in town. During the last year the Republic business under the guidance of Messrs. Broderick and Hurling, has grown from nothing to proportions of importance. An arrangement which they have recently effected with Pacific Coast Manager M. E. Murray now makes it possible to handle all adjustments on this side without the inconvenience and delay of shipping across the bay. Factory branch service is, in reality, extended users.

NEW RECOGNITION ACCORDED COAST

C. B. Warren Is New President of Indiana Manufacturers' Association.

In the election of C. B. Warren, general manager of the Haynes Automobile company, to the presidency of the Indiana Automobile Manufacturers' Association, another Pacific coast automobile man has been recognized as a prominent figure in motor circles. Mr. Warren also is vice-president of the Haynes Auto Sales company, the factory branch of the manufacturing company for the Pacific coast.

Among the problems which will fall under Mr. Warren's guidance in his new position will be one of considerable interest to the motorists of the Pacific coast, the Four States tour for next year. The tour is an annual affair arranged by the Indiana association to demonstrate the many makes of machines which bear the "Made in Indiana" stamp. It is now hinted that next year the tourists will be routed from Indianapolis to San Francisco via the "Ocean to Ocean" highway, making the round trip over the road that promises to be of such vast importance to this city in 1915.

RAINIER PARK TO WELCOME AUTOS

Washington's Famous Pleasure Ground No Longer Bars Machines.

News that the State of Washington's Rainier National Park—in the center of which the famous Nisqually glacier—has been thrown open to automobile tourists, was learned a few days ago by S. G. Chapman, the Hudson distributor in this territory.

Rainier National Park is one of the few national parks that automobiles will be allowed to tour in, and as a consequence the news of the opening of the great natural playground was received with expressions of agreeable surprise by local motorists.

In connection with the opening of the park came some interesting news relative to the first automobiles to enter the new park. A string of Hudson cars mastered the famous Nisqually glacier. Photographs which have been received here of the string of Hudson cars at an elevation of about 4000 feet above the sea level, show the immense size of the glacier, the entire center portion of which is an immense ice field surrounded on three sides by growing vegetation. The glacier is continually melting from underneath, and in it the Nisqually river has its origin.

"Every new road that is built, over the snow that is laid out and every spot of scenic grandeur that is open to automobilists is a great stimulus to motoring," said Chapman. "With the completion of the new transcontinental route, next spring, easterners will have many points of interest in California and all the coast states to see."

NEW KNOX CAR RECEIVED HERE

First of Little Six-Cylinder Machines to Come to the Coast.

The new 1913 Little Six-cylinder Knox car has been received by the Reliance Automobile Company, the local agents. This is the first of the Little Six-cylinder cars of the Knox factory to come to the Pacific coast.

The model received, which has been sold to a present owner of a Knox car, is a seven-passenger touring car. Samuel Crim, in speaking of the new car, said:

"I am more than pleased with this latest output of the Knox factory, and in consideration of the fact that in a telegram just received it is stated that the Knox people will be able to make shipments to us just as fast as we need them, I feel most enthusiastic since I have seen this new product. It is a new and distinct car of unusual power, quietness, comfort and style, embodying most of the American and European ideas in a proved and successful combination."

CHALMERS CARS ON LONG TRIPS

Three Notable Distance Tours Undertaken, One Over Santa Fe Trail.

"This is the open season for long distance touring among Chalmers owners," says Calvin C. Elb, of Pioneer Automobile Company, representative of the Chalmers. "I have just received letters regarding three notable long distance tours."

"Perhaps the most interesting is the trip made by George Webb who recently drove his 1913 Chalmers 'Six' from New York to Los Angeles over the old Santa Fe trail, covering a total distance of 4195 miles. The total running time was 208 hours and 15 minutes.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb left New York July 22 and made their transcontinental trip through Buffalo, across Canada to Detroit, through South Bend to Chicago and westward through Springfield, Illinois, and down to St. Louis. At that point the Chalmers party struck the ocean to ocean highway which has recently been mapped by a Los Angeles newspaper and followed this route practically all of the way to the Pacific coast.

"Another remarkable tour was that made by Harry Bauscher, who made the trip from Chicago to San Francisco in a Chalmers 'Twenty-six' carrying a party of five. Following a roundabout route Mr. Bauscher covered 4820 miles without a puncture or a mechanical adjustment. Among the features of the trip were the crossing of the Great American Desert and side trips through the canyons of the Rockies."

CALIFORNIA MAY LEAD IN CHALMERS CAR SALES

E. P. Brinkner of the Pioneer Automobile Company is in receipt of the following communication from Hugh Chalmers of the Chalmers Motor Company:

"When in Detroit recently you are going to lead the east this year in the sale of Chalmers automobiles and at this stage of proceedings it looks as though California might make good."

"San Francisco leads in cars sold, with Los Angeles in second position. "Pressing Los Angeles closely is San Antonio, Tex. The Lone Star agency is in third position, with only five cars less than Los Angeles. "It is interesting to note that the four cities contending for second place in the list are only ten orders apart. At the rate orders are coming in the positions shift every day or two."

LUNCHEON GIVEN TO AUTO OFFICIALS

D. S. Menasco Tendered Farewell Feast by Local Managers.

An informal luncheon was tendered Friday to D. S. Menasco, vice-president and general manager of the American Motors, at the Saddle Rock cafe, at which were present all of the different American and Marlin district and branch managers on the Pacific Coast.

The affair was given as a parting testimonial to Mr. Menasco, who leaves for the East tonight by way of Portland and Seattle, en route to announce the contemplated building of permanent salesrooms here within which to house the American and Marlin lines.

The city of Oakland was represented by Mr. A. A. Denison, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Following a well-arranged feast, Denison addressed the motor car men, the majority of whom are in reality strangers to the West, on the growth of Oakland in the past five years, its future prospects and concluded his talk with some well defined and interesting remarks on what the automobile has done for Alameda county and in turn, of the splendid work which has been done by the supervisors in the matter of road construction here. He outlined what this city had to offer in the way of manufacturing sites and the advantages according to manufacturers in locating here.

By way of reply Mr. Menasco gave his views on the Pacific coast as it now seen by him and revealed the interesting information that both the companies he represented would more than ever look to this section with a seriousness not entertained up to this point.

Other present at the gathering were: Marc C. Bunnell, western representative of the American factory; F. M. Bowman, manager of the San Francisco branch of the American factory; H. W. Harrington, San Francisco manager for the Marlin car; Lawrence Hunsacker, representative for both cars in the Oakland territory; James Houlahan of THE TRIBUNE, Edmund Cranning and E. A. Rogers.

HALL TO HANDLE A STREET CLEANER IS ANGERED BY MONEY

Henderson Joins Local Motor Ranks With Well Known Agent.

The Henderson car, very much in evidence for the past few months, will be represented here permanently by the Hall Motor Car Company. Arrangements to this end were concluded a week ago and the first demonstrating model was received Wednesday by the new distributors.

Throughout the United States the Henderson has been well received. At this time the Henderson factory is taxed to capacity to fill orders. The Bonheim-Moore Company of San Francisco, No. 241, distributors, are particularly fortunate in being able to get shipments sufficient for immediate needs.

Bill Hall needs no introduction to the people of Oakland, as he has been in the motor car business for a number of years. In looking for a new agency to represent them in Alameda county, Hall states that he looked over many machines and decided that the Henderson car was the one that he wanted. He was convinced of its wonderful flexibility and power. "Mr. Moore, of the Bonheim-Moore Motor Car Company in San Francisco, demonstrated the Henderson to me," said Hall, "on one of the steepest hills in San Francisco, and convinced me that the two great and important features which are necessary on any automobile in California, namely, power and a braking system, were perfect on the Henderson car. A slight pressure of the foot will hold the Henderson on any grade, and inasmuch as the foot brake locks in position it makes these brakes especially safe for a woman or young people to drive. I went over the mechanical features of the Henderson car very thoroughly and inasmuch as I have always sold higher priced machines, it was hard for me to realize that the Henderson could produce so good an automobile for the price they offer this car at."

Sweeps Aside Bags Full of Coin Thinking Them Nothing but Rocks.

BUFFALO, Nov. 2.—Henry Witke, a "white wing," was sweeping Vandewater avenue near Vista avenue, when his broom came in contact with a dirty looking bag filled with what appeared to be rocks. Witke kicked it aside with his foot, but when he saw a second and a third bag near the first he became thoroughly disgusted.

"Who can sweep rocks with a broom like this!" he exclaimed. Laying down his broom he picked up the bags one at a time, threw them behind a telegraph pole and grumblingly resumed his work. He had swept only a few minutes when he heard a clatter ahead of him and looked up into the faces of two very pale young men in an automobile. "Seen any money in the street?" they shouted.

"Now," replied Witke. "Nothing around here but rocks." The word rocks must have suggested something to the young men, for they asked what had become of them. "Pitched them behind a telegraph pole back there," Witke said, shortly. "May be you can find them and may be you can't. I'm too busy to stop."

The young men hopped and sped toward the spot indicated. Three canvas bags containing between $7000 and $8000 in silver were behind the telegraph pole where Witke had thrown them. As the smiling and happy return of the coin passed Witke he was busy sweeping the street, and still growing angry at people who throw rocks on the pavement.

The men in the automobile had collected the money from the United Railways Company's car barn and were taking it to the general headquarters at Vandewater and Park avenues.

The largest amount of building of large structures in Oakland for one month handled by the Builders' Exchange of Alameda county during the lengthy existence of the organization, is reported by F. P. Bradhoff, the new secretary of the exchange, for the month of October. The cost of construction undertaken during the month, exclusive of dwellings, which total an immense sum every thirty days, is $1,453,500.

The Builders' Exchange, representing the entire building industry of the east bay cities, was organized more than thirty years ago and during that time its representatives have been intimately connected with the financial, commercial and building growth of the Alameda county cities. During the month of October there was "figured" through the exchange the greatest number of plans, aggregating the largest amount of building for the same period, during its entire history, as evidenced by the figures. The first allotment of plans have been finished, and the contracts let for the

CITY'S POPULATION INCREASES RAPIDLY

Oakland's Gain in Inhabitants
Eighty Per Cent in Ten Years.

During the last thirty years the population of San Francisco has been increasing at the rate of 21.3 per cent every ten years, while that of Oakland and the east shore cities has been increasing at the rate of 80 per cent every ten years.

While San Francisco is growing steadily in wealth and population, Oakland and the east shore cities have been growing with far greater rapidity. During the last three years San Francisco nearly doubled its population. But the population of Oakland and east shore cities increased more than fivefold.

In this time the cities of the east shore, from Richmond to Alameda, have grown into practically one great community—a community whose gigantic future is hardly dreamed of.

The events of 1906 are but a small factor in this drama of population growth and industrial development, for while the east shore cities increased more rapidly in population during the period 1900-1910,

OCTOBER MONTH OF SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS

October has been a satisfactory month to the real estate brokers of Oakland, and a period of advancement in municipal and private building construction.

The most attention has been drawn to the rapid work on the new city hall. There are but two stories of the main walls remaining to be covered with stone, and the entire exterior work will soon be completed. Good progress is also being made on numerous business structures in the downtown district. Several new brick structures were started during the past week. Favorable weather has permitted a brisk autumn selling in the numerous suburban residence tracts.

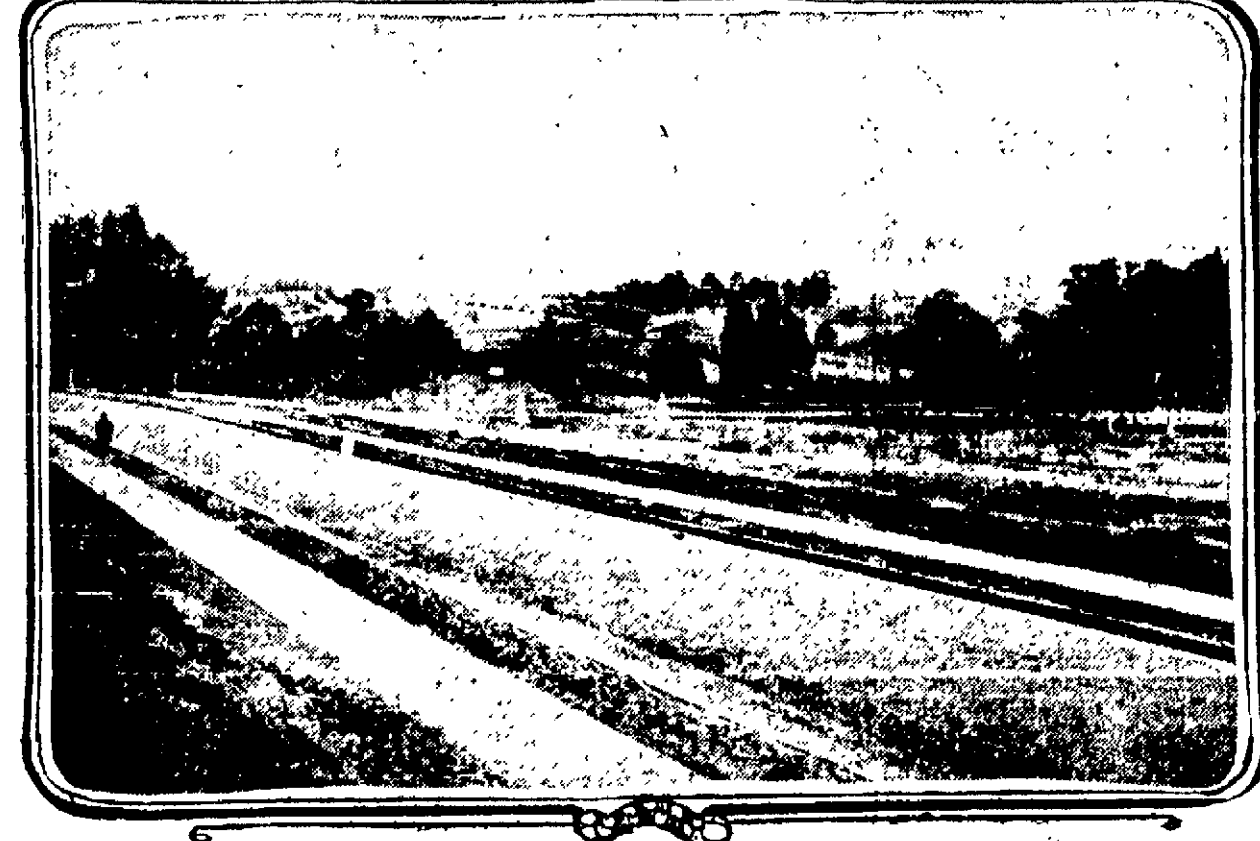

Deeds to the number of 322 were filed in the office of County Recorder Bacon during the week. The amount of mortgages and deeds of trust, representing realty loans for the week, was $427,404, a decrease of $72,454 as compared with the previous week.

San Francisco also made a percentage of growth over the preceding ten years. The movement is rather based upon deep-lying causes involving the factors of superior climate, extensive areas suitable for purposes of manufacturing, a much larger and ultimately more practicable waterfront and the advantage of the direct service of three transcontinental railway lines.

The fact of this astounding growth and approaching supremacy of Oakland and the east shore cities is yet only partly appreciated. Real estate values are still extraordinarily low in comparison with population and rate of growth. While the east shore cities are today nearly two-thirds as large as San Francisco, real estate values are on the average only one-third as great.

Real estate values in cities of equal population tend to equalize, and upon this basis, the equalizing of population between San Francisco and the east shore cities during the next few years, will mean an increase in real values on the east shore to an amount conservatively estimated at $200,000,000, and this increase will represent profit to the present holders and future investors in real property in the east shore cities.

By this surge of population and manufacturing to the east shore enormous opportunities are presented for the manufacturer, for the merchant, and for the investor. An irresistible movement of population and industry is in progress, which spells wealth for those possessed of the foresight, wisdom and enterprise to seize their opportunity.

Both views are from Piedmont-by-the-Lake looking across Lake Shore avenue toward the East Piedmont Heights, the upper photograph having been taken in 1908, and lower one a few days ago. The pictures tell the story of building enterprise in growing residence district. Similar development has taken place in many other suburban sections of Oakland.

The need of public parks in East Oakland is to be partially filled by the purchase of the old California College site if the citizens vote favorably on an item which is to be submitted at an election in the spring. Mayor Neff has announced the city's intention of having the project voted upon. The city has an option on the property, the purchase price of which is $60,000. The property consists of 11 acres and long has been sought by the city for a park.

WHAT OAKLAND IS BUILDING

Municipal auditorium to cost $500,000, to have seating capacity of 16,000, to be ready for Admission Day, 1913.
Twenty-nine parks, already representing a value for ground alone of more than $2,000,000.
More than two miles of modern wharves, with the most up-to-date equipment for handling freight.
Two of the largest hotels to the state.
A dozen business blocks and commercial places, the equal of any on the continent.
A score of residence sections among the surrounding foothills, where scenery and climate are entrancing.
Three million dollars to be put into new school buildings.
A half million dollars to be put into new church edifices.
More than a quarter million dollars a year to be spent in improvement of parks.
New playgrounds for children are already laid out and equipped. Others are being added.

CITY AND RAILROADS IMPROVE WATERFRONT

The city and the Southern Pacific are now completing the first stages of waterfront improvement at a cost of $3,500,000. This municipal work includes a concrete pier at Livingston street costing $150,000, 2700 feet of quay wall along estuary with streets back of it, and 5000 feet of retaining wall and wharves on Key Route basin. Reclamation of 400 acres of land back of the retaining wall is part of the city's plan. The waterfront work by the city of Oakland will require to complete it ten or twelve million dollars.
The Southern Pacific, the Western Pacific, the Key Route Railroad and other corporations and private firms have leases, franchises and holdings on approximately three miles of the eight miles of Oakland waterfront now in use and under improvement. The city retains and is improving the remainder.

LUMBER SHIPPING RECORD IS NOTABLE

Establishing a notable record, the Webster street bridge, one of the largest structures of its kind in the West, swung Friday at midnight for a total of 19,028 times. Between January 1 and midnight, November 1, 1911, the structure had made a total of 16,827 openings. This year to date, however, eclipses the 1911 record by 100 turns, and from present indications bids fair to reach the 15,000 mark for the entire year.

The record being made by the bridge this year is considered remarkable and emphasizes the great increase of inner harbor shipping since the completion of the East Oakland city wharves as well as the enlarging of many privately owned waterfront holdings on that section of the waterfront. Prospects at the beginning of 1912 pointed towards a decrease as compared with the preceding year. This belief was brought about by the transferring of the Pacific Freight and Transportation Company's sheds from the inner harbor to a position near the mouth of the channel. As this company operated vessels through the harbor on an average of six a day it was feared that this big decrease would result in a big decline in the turning of the structure. With these vessels not passing through the bridge, the turns are decreased about 2200 a year, but show the wonderful increase of shipping in the inner harbor since the beginning of the year 1912.

From a conservative estimate made and compiled by a representative of THE TRIBUNE there are between 25,000,000 and 35,000,000 feet of lumber handled in the inner harbor wharves monthly, with long wharf, along taking care of between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 feet per month, makes the number of feet of lumber handled in the inner harbor nearly 20,000,000 feet monthly. The lumber averages about $30 per thousand feet or nearly $1,000,000 worth of lumber is brought here and handled directly over local docks every month. In spite of this heavy lumber shipment, the docks on this side have always handled these large cargoes without any trouble and without the congestion and confusion which is now apparent on the San Francisco waterfront.

As the city and the Southern Pacific are making expenditures for development work on the waterfront that will amount in the next three years to approximately $15,000,000.
The total improvement work on the eight miles of waterfront under plans now being carried out will cost for approximately $10,000,000 and this work will be completed within three years, or by spring of 1915.

FREIGHT VALUE FOR OCTOBER $7,250,000

Cargoes Passing Over the City
Wharves Average 6000
Tons Per Day.

Indication Is Given of the Use
Oakland Will Find for Big Harbor Improvements.

In one day in October of this year, there was shipped over Oakland's wharves 23,890 tons of freight, on ocean going vessels. Two days before this the shipments on the same class of vessels, over Oakland's wharves, amounted to 19,527 tons.

The total of such water-carried business for the month of October was 130,854 tons, an average of 8000 tons per day. This business was handled by 265 ocean-going vessels.

The value of this freight handled during the month of October was approximately seven and one-quarter million dollars. These figures show the demand for facilities for handling water-carried freight on Oakland's waterfront.

If, with the present facilities, the deep sea carriers handle this much at Oakland's wharves, it can be estimated how much greater this business will be when the present municipal waterfront improvements are finished and brought into use.

A writer in an Eastern paper, who evidently gained his information, or what passed for information, concerning this matter from a source unfriendly to Oakland—not to say it was from San Francisco—made a statement to the effect that it was uncertain whether Oakland would find for wharves and a harbor after they were provided.

ACKNOWLEDGES ERROR.

This is one of the misstatements concerning Oakland that are sometimes made. The writer of the article in question, when his attention was called to the real facts, made an apology and offered to correct the false impression he had created.

The Oakland Chamber of Commerce called his attention to a few facts, among them the monthly shipping business, and 700,000 tons of freight was landed from Oakland's wharves, this freight passing to and from the Pacific ocean through the Golden Gate directly to and from these wharves. That is nearly as much as the total tonnage annually passing through the Delo canal. And the Erie canal is the key to the commercial supremacy of the port of New York.

The growing importance of the water-carried business of Oakland is calling attention to it, and emphasizing the fact that Oakland must inevitably be to the Pacific coast what New York is to the Atlantic coast. Nature has made the channel through which commerce can most easily travel between the central port of the Western American nation, and the great industrial country from which produce for outward shipment is to be drawn, and to which the produce and waste parts of the world must be shipped in.

The natural trade area of Oakland as the principal commercial city on the bay extends directly eastward to nearly 1000 miles. By this is meant that from all points in this natural trade area, freight can be handled cheaper and faster to Oakland than to any other seaport. The immensity of this area and the consequent importance of the commercial center that is to handle the products of the country can be conceived when it is realized that this distance is more than the distance from New York to Chicago. In other words, the area of the territory tributary to Oakland as a seaport and as a commercial distributing center is far greater than that of New York.

It needs only a comparison of the productivity of the two regions, a little look at the future toward the time when the great agricultural, mineral, horticultural and industrial resources of the Sierra and Nevada mountains are fully developed, to present to the imagination a picture of the enormous volume of traffic that is destined to flow backward and forward to and from the wharves of Oakland's waterfront. That day is not far distant. Already the irregularity of the coast, the lack of the multiplicity of railroads and avenues of travel by wagon and auto, are making the desert of yesterday the residence places of a thrifty population living in a highly productive land.

As the land becomes populated and cultivated, each farm will contribute its part to the stream of commerce flowing through Oakland's waterfront gateway to the markets of the world.

TUNNEL LIGHTING WILL HELP CITY

An improvement in which the merchants and others working for the advancement of Oakland are interested is the lighting of the tunnel between Alameda and Contra Costa counties. John Mitchell, president of the State Board of Equalization and other organizations to have this improvement made.

Mitchell contended that a franchise was granted the Oakland and Alameda railway to lay tracks in Shafter streets and through the lower part of the tunnel, and that the company would place lights in the tunnel. The company later gave up these plans and began work on its own tunnel.
That the company now holds the franchise and can be compelled to agree to the improvement was the contention of Mitchell, and he asked that the company be compelled to carry out the improvement. The question was referred to R. F. Wacker, city attorney, for his opinion.

SPANISH ARCHITECTURE FEATURE OF NEW HOME

$30,000 DWELLING WHICH IS BEING ERRECTED FOR E. D. PHILLIPS NORTH OF LAKE MERRITT.

A $30,000 two-story residence is being built for E. D. Phillips, a newcomer from Montana, at the foot of Perkins street, facing Lake Merritt. The general exterior design is of Spanish Renaissance with cement walls and Mission tile roof. Broad verandas with wrought iron railings, trellises and pergola connecting the house with garage of similar design, together with a broad terraced approach, will give the house a distinctive character. In the interior Mr. Phillips will have a residence to be excelled by none in Oakland. The spacious entrance lobby is in an Italian renaissance period of architecture with mahogany woods, Italian marbles and tapestry walls. Antique vases will complete the effectiveness of this room. The main dining room of English design with full paneled walls and a close beamed ceiling is carefully selected creosote walnut will be one of the features of the house.

The reception room is to be carried out in Louis XV period with refined ornamental panels, tapestry walls and hangings. The woodwork of this room is birch, treated in the light colored enamel.

The living room is in solid mahogany, the den in quartered sawed white oak. A billiard room, a great number of bedrooms with private baths and dressing room, together with servants' rooms and a large social hall on the third floor, will complete the comforts of this magnificent home.

Edward T. Poulsen is the architect and John Laughland the contractor.

VACANT HOMES IN ALAMEDA SCARCE

Building Has Been Lively, But There Are Occupants A Plenty.

ALAMEDA, Nov. 2.—Alameda's unoccupied homes are growing scarcer day by day, showing a healthy and steady growth all over the city, for this year's new building record will probably exceed any in the city's history. A little attention paid to "for rent" notices shows that a great majority of the houses for rent are of the style of twenty years ago. Modern cottages and bungalows and the popular colonial two-story and a half homes are seldom advertised for rent.

The new Alameda bond issue is receiving its finishing touches and will be ready for opening by the Christmas holidays. It is a handsome block and strictly up to date and will fill a long-felt want. It is to be operated by the California Amusement Company, a heavily financed Oakland amusement corporation.

Alameda brokers are equipping their offices with automobiles, the more conveniently to handle increasing and extending business. One or two firms are using motorcycles for making collections and other quick calls.

BERKELEY BOOSTS BUILDING RECORD

Residences and Factory Structures Are Numerous in Development List.

BERKELEY, Nov. 2.—Local builders and investors are interestingly awaiting the report for last month of the building inspector's office, as it promises to show the heaviest returns in new buildings of any October in the history of the city. New residences occupied the chief attention of the inspector during the month, though other structures than homes were also noteworthy.

The development of West Berkeley as a manufacturing center continues apace. One of the latest additions to the American Photo Player Company, which has erected one building for use as a factory and commenced this week the erection of a second. The latter is located at Industrial and Addison streets and will be two stories in height.

The paving of streets contemplated by the city and already being carried on in the heart of the tract properties has aroused interest in properties previously somewhat overlooked. Marin avenue has now been paved eastward from Spruce street, the roadway being in condition almost to the crest of the hills. Other streets in the same neighborhood are being rapidly put into shape. College avenue is soon to be repaved at considerable expense.

Among the building permits of recent issue are the following:

One and one-half story six-room bungalow, south side of Prince street, 200 feet east of Shattuck avenue; Thomas H. Nequire, owner; $212.

Two-story seven-room residence, west side of Spruce street, 250 feet north of Los Angeles avenue; James T. Preston, owner; $300.

One-story store building, west side of San Pablo avenue and south side of Dwight way; Tilton Investment Company, owner and builder; $500.

One-story three-room residence, south side of Virginia street, 260 feet east of California street; Rosa M. Fluth, owner; $995.

One-story five-room cottage, east side of Ellsworth street, 50 feet north of Chaney way; M. B. Mott, owner; $350.

One-story five-room cottage, east of Ellsworth street, 55 feet north of Chaney way; M. B. Mott, owner; $1950.

WORE STRIPES TO CHILD'S FUNERAL

Father Permitted to Leave the Prison to Attend Obsèques of Infant.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 2.—Bearing the stripes of servitude to society, but still a father's emotions, John Owens, a State prison convict, whose home is in Cherokee Park, attended the funeral of his 18-month-old baby. Without a guard, but wearing the hated prison garb which only his grief could cause him to forgo for the moment, he was allowed to go from the penitentiary to his humble home, where he bade good-bye to all that was mortal of his child.

Then, honoring the trust that had been placed in him, he went back to the hard labors of the felon, and the grim door clanged behind him again.

John Owens was sent up five months ago to serve a term of one year, and since that time his devoted wife has struggled faithfully to provide for the family of small children left in her care. She has been compelled to take in washing for her livelihood, and the sick baby demanded so much of her time that several washings had to be given up, and the mother was forced to ask for help from the United Charities.

The child had been ill for some time and its death came the morning before, and it was paid for by his expenses. No burial fund is provided at the United Charities, and some delay was experienced in securing the casket. During his imprisonment the father had earned several dollars and this was used to pay for the child's last outfit.

Through the kindness of J. A. Bradley, who loaned his automobile for the purpose, the minister, Rev. M. C. Cassey, and the mother carried the remains to Spring Hill cemetery, where they were interred.

The father was left to return to prison after a brief hour of freedom. He expressed himself as being glad of the privilege of attending the funeral of his child.

He was allowed to appear in stripes among his friends and neighbors.

Brannhall Gilbert, well known society matron and her two daughters, Miss Lilla and Miss Florence Gilbert; Mrs. W. Goadby Loew, Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden and Miss Ethel Roosevelt.

Has Her Eye on Place in the White House

MRS. WILLIAM SULZER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—According to natives, Mrs. William Sulzer expects some time to be the Lady of the White House. That her husband's ambition is unbounded is a well known fact. He has been in Congress for many years and now holds the important position of chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the House. He is the Democratic nominee for governor of New York and Mrs. Sulzer is certain she is to be the wife of the governor of Albany next winter, and as the step from governor to President is not an impossible one she has no small hope. It is said of being the first lady of the land.

Mrs. Sulzer is deeply interested in her husband's success, though she refuses to take an active part in the discussion of politics, preferring to be a silent partner in the diplomatic's public life.

Mrs. Hyatt, who has apartments on the third floor, was called in by Pinkham to assist Dr. J. H. Hartwell in using a stomach pump on Mrs. Pinkham. While so engaged, Pinkham fell unconscious. Suddenly, while with Mrs. Carrie Warnock of 718 Dauphin street, they worked over this peculiar case and were convinced to seek the street. General Penn and Special Police, McDonald and Richard of the Park and Lehigh avenue station, who were called in, also suffered severe nausea. In the meantime, an ambulance arrived and removed Pinkham and his wife to the hospital.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Eight persons are suffering from the effects of a mysterious gas that filled the apartments of George Pinkham, 714 Dauphin street. Pinkham and his wife, Lavette, are in the Samaritan hospital, while the others who were affected have recovered.

The gas evidently emanated from a large can of black, sticky fluid in the bathroom. This can gave forth a strong, stifling odor. In the meantime the police are waiting for Pinkham to speak, so the mystery may be cleared.

It is said by neighbors and those who are acquainted with him that Pinkham for a long time made experiments in chemistry. He is employed as a mechanical engineer by the Union Specialty Company, 731 Arch street.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Sudden stricken with hydrophobia two days ago William Kulbach of 35 North Allison street, who was bitten last July by a French poodle, died in agony in the Presbyterian hospital. The man was 51 years of age and an avid sportsman. Kulbach, who was a horse dealer and dog fancier, had been bitten numerous times during his business career. The bite that it is believed caused his death was received on his arm.

At that time Kulbach mentioned to his wife that his finger itched and that he was bitten by a dog named French. Mrs. Kulbach, who is a French woman, became anxious and hurried him to go to the Pasteur Institute in New York for examination.

HIGH SCHOOL SITE HARD TO OBTAIN

Richmond Realty and Building Operations Show a Big Advance.

RICHMOND, Nov. 2.—In their search for a school building site east of the Southern Pacific tracks the Richmond Board of Education is receiving a practical lesson on the advance in Richmond realty during the last year and also on the increase in building.

The board has found it virtually impossible to find any site at all in the territory adjacent to Twenty-third street, the city boundary prior to annexation, because it has been built over to such an extent that a piece of ground big enough for a school building and playgrounds is hard to find. The board has made negotiations for a site on one of the subdivisions east of Twenty-third and has found that market values are double what they were a year ago, with no particular desire on the part of owners to sell.

When the city's $85,000 high school was built on Twenty-third street near Macdonald avenue four years ago it was in the center of a busy district and it is in the midst of many buildings. GROWTH KEEPS BOARD BUSY.

It is surprising to the Board of Education that having just completed two large new school buildings, which it thought would suffice for the next four or five years, it is compelled to erect another at once, just as it is to take up the increased enrollment. Many new families are settling in Richmond and beside this hundreds of men that are employed in various industries here have been bringing their families to the homes they have established, intending to make their permanent residence in Richmond. The day of an itinerant population working in the city is over and the city is building with a settled population.

Paving of the business streets in the western part of the city will be a great improvement for Richmond. The job is to be done in a first-class manner. Richmond is becoming a compact city, the incorporation under one name of the various sections having wiped out all dividing lines. The improvement of the streets will be a part of the municipal program and the railway improvement has wiped out distance.

PEOPLE PULLING TOGETHER.

There is no city in the state where all the people are pulling more completely than in Richmond, this being shown by the fact that the city for the city of Richmond and all the people are in it with a determination that the bonds receive the highest vote possible.

The campaign of education is going along briskly and successfully. Voters are being given every facility to post themselves on the details of the harbor plans. Every man with property interest or any other real interest in Richmond seems to be for the projects. The large campaign committee represents all parts of the city and all the citizens and civic organizations.

The fact that the Santa Fe road company recently paid $40,000 an acre for Oakland waterfront land to which it will bring its freight cars by barge from the Richmond terminal has been an eye-opener to the people. For as to the value of the land, the city will gain by the carrying out of the harbor work. This land will have a great value the minute the harbor improvements are made, and in a few years will be able to pay for itself.

It is a rich asset for the city. The minute ships are floating in the new harbor the land adjacent to it, which will belong to the people, will be worth at least estimate twice the cost of the improvement.

RAILWAYS ACTIVE IN GAME.

Railway moves are taking a prominent place again in activities here. The Southern Pacific and the East Shore and Suburban are still sparring for advantages and the Santa Fe is getting a hand into the game. Within the last few days talk of the Key Route building a direct line in here has been revived through the fact that its agents have been obtaining maps and other data relating to the city through which it runs. It said the Key Route, in order to compete in the matter of time with the Southern Pacific's electric service into Richmond, would build a line from San Pablo avenue and Potrero avenue, giving a straight shoot for an express passenger service.

Really sales and building were never more active in Richmond than at present. The rapid pace of the lower priced investments are causing buyers to hurry and get hold of something while yet there is an opportunity to buy at the first prices. There are now but few tracts of any considerable size left for subdivision in all the Greater Richmond territory and these will soon be on the market. The day is not far away when the chance to invest at opening prices will be gone.

OUR CHAMPS SHOW OLD TIME SPEED AGAINST ALL-STAR

Olmstead Outpitches Moskiman in Second Game of Series at Freeman's Park; Coy Gets a Homer

Oakland would not stand for another defeat at the hand of that All-Star combination out at Freeman's Park yesterday afternoon, and after a battle royal on the ball field our hopes and pride walked away with the long end of the 2-to-1 score.

The champions of all the Pacific coast and to go some to bring home the winning end of the series and out for the assistance of one Bertram Coy, that fellow who made the most homers during the season, there might have been a deadlock.

Sitting the game up right it was a pitcher's duel and both Moskiman and Olmstead, who officiated for the All Stars and Oaks, respectively, performed in most excellent manner. Olmstead was particularly high going in the first inning, but the Oaks were not to be outdone.

Each score in the sixth. Up to the sixth inning it was a hideous game almost for Oakland had been able to butt into the column but once while the others were nix.

Then Eddie Hallinan by being fleet of foot managed to beat out one that he had gently tapped with his bat. When Eddie Burns grounded out to Big John, the other Eddie was enabled to second and when Moskiman did likewise as Eddie Burns did, Hallinan rambled to third.

Up to the sixth inning it was a hideous game almost for Oakland had been able to butt into the column but once while the others were nix.

SANTACLA RPLAYS FAST RUGBY GAME DOWN SOUTH

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—Santa Clara and U. S. C. came together today in the scrappiest game ever pulled off in the south, and Santa Clara won because they had more science than the other team. The game was a real test of the three points coming to U. S. C. The result was a 10-0 victory for Santa Clara, who were the victors in the game.

MANY NEW FEATURES IN 1913 INDIAN MOTORCYCLE

By far the most significant feature of the new 1913 Indian motorcycle is the cradle spring. It is something entirely new, a radical departure from the old Indian motorcycle. The new device consists of the application to the rear wheel of the Indian cradle spring device as used on the front fork for the past three years.

CAN PITCHER MAKE SIX STRIKE-OUTS IN INNING

It is possible for a pitcher to be credited with six strikeouts in an inning in accordance with rule 11, section 4, which reads: "A batter is out when he is struck out by a pitcher." Here is one way that answers your question: First man up without a bat and gets to first on a passed ball. Second man strikes out. Third man strikes out. Fourth and fifth men get on the same way as the first batter. Sixth man strikes out. You will notice that in three instances the catcher squeezed the ball. Here is another way: First batter strikes out, gets to first on a passed ball. Second batter strikes out. Third man strikes out. Fourth man strikes out. In each case the pitcher gets credit for six strikeouts in the inning.

WOLGAST WILL GET REAL TRYOUT WITH JOE MANDOT

Fans Are Figuring That Little Champion Has Slowed Up Considerable Since Sickness

(By W. W. NAUGHTON.)

AN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Ad Wolgast, who has been matching himself against all and sundry in reckless fashion for months past, will be lucky if he pulls through all right in his affair with Joe Mandot at New Orleans Monday. Wolgast, who is a game fellow and who likes nothing better than fighting, seems to think that he is as good as ever, but the showings he has made since he underwent his operation for appendicitis suggest that his strength has diminished.

Several times he has differed in disposition of little fellows with no pretensions to class and not once since he took up the grind of the ring after coming out of the hospital has he defeated any opponent in fashion. Even his affair with Joe Rivers at Los Angeles has not enriched his reputation, but on the contrary many good judges who watched Wolgast that day remarked that he seemed dog tired and void of punching power in the later rounds. The finish of the bout was such a peculiar one that there are few if any who give Wolgast credit for a clean victory.

Mandot seems to be one of the improving kind. He was only a featherweight a couple of years ago and in addition to thickening into a lightweight he has gained in cleverness and hitting force.

In several cases after being beaten by another fighter early in his career, he has turned the table completely when matched a second time.

It is believed, in fact, that Mandot is what is termed the logical opponent for Wolgast in a match for the championship distance, but Wolgast does not appear to look at it that way. He simply regards the New Orleans boy as a good enough adversary to fill in while waiting for Thanksgiving and a real championship encounter to come along.

Of the two men Mandot has had the more legitimate preparation. He has trained in his home section, while Wolgast has been hopping all over the country doing what might be termed pugilistic one-night stands. It is just possible that the ten-round distance will Mandot better than it does the champion.

Those who know all about the southern circuit and that he can get a rare good fight in ten rounds, and such being the case Wolgast is likely to experience trouble unless his condition is better than the sporting public believes it is.

One or two of Wolgast's friends in San Francisco have been advised by the little champion to take no heed of any disturbing stories they may hear regarding him. To one sport he wrote in part, as follows:

WOLGAST IS SATISFIED. "If I had not been satisfied with my condition I would not have left the old farm back in Michigan. To tell the truth when I went there I did not know how long I might have to stay, but I made such gains in a few weeks that I felt it would be a waste of time and a loss of money to remain out of the harness any longer. I made one mistake in my life, and that was in risking my championship with Rivers so soon after my operation. I can see that now. I was not half good for that fight and if Rivers was only half as good as they think in Los Angeles, he would have won from me. I can say right now that I am thoroughly recovered. I believe I am better than I used to be before I went under the knife. Tom Jones thinks I am hitting harder and I think he is right. I will be in New Orleans in a day or two to train for Mandot, and it is safe to say that I will be a better man than I was when I left the old farm back in Michigan. For his own sake it is to be hoped he knows himself as well as he thinks he does, and that he is not under-rating the New Orleans fighter."

EDDIE THOMPSON ALAMEDA LADS TO IN FAR OFF LAND DOING FIGHTS

Canadian Eddie Thompson, famed the world over as a globe trotter, has turned up in far-off Australia, according to a letter to the sporting editor of THE TRIBUNE.

Thompson is a real dyed-in-the-wool fight fan and it is his boast that he has seldom failed to witness a championship contest. His letter follows and is chock full of interesting gossip of sports in far-off Australia.

Wellington, N. Z., Oct. 7, 1912. Mr. Bert Lowry—Dear Sir: I arrived here today after a very successful trip and I have some very good news in the sporting line. I have just heard that I got a very good boy along with me by the name of Young Wallace, and some lighter looks like Battling Nelson and some other boys who are looking for a fight to try him out in Tahiti Society Islands against the champion Kanaka. His name is Young Wallace, 180, 6 ft. 11 in. in height and one of the best equipped men I have ever seen, and a fairly good boxer. Well, to give the passengers a chance to see the fight, I have arranged to have him fight against Tarnald for a ten-rounds go at the Casino De Tahiti. The house was full and the fight was a real treat. We got 50 per cent win, lose or draw. Well, to cut a long story short, my boy won. I was grand. I have already written McIntosh in regards to a fight for him against any of the welterweights in Australia, and I think he will make good, and believe me I will pick the soft ones first; no rushing him for mine. If we are successful I will take him to London and Paris by the way. I met an old champion here today, old Billy Murray, who won the world's championship from Jack Dempsey. He is a real old pro and he says as well as a champion in spite of his age and thinks there is still a good fight in him yet. There are lots of sports here, and you will find a lot of good boys to fight.

Now, Bert, old boy, I am enjoying my self and have a swell time. I am leaving here again on the 10th of October for Sydney, where I will see most of the boys from the states and then on to tell you more of their doings in and out of the ring.

I saw where Eddie Zanders got a lot, beating the expenses of training on the ship were high, so you see we are on the right track with a good side. Then we gave numerous exhibitions to help the cause along on the boat, concerts and all kinds of athletics, and it was grand. AUSTRALIAN RUGBYITES DEFEAT THE VARSITY

U. C. TEAM WORSTED; 23 TO 3

Waratahs Carry Ball Over the Blue and Gold Line Seven Times

Stanford Ruggers Defeat the Olympic Club Team; Score 19 to 0

(By MARSHALL EVANS.)

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Nov. 2.—The third and last contest between the Australian Waratahs and the University of California Rugby team and the last game of the preliminary season, took place on the field at Berkeley yesterday afternoon, and resulted in a 23 to 3 victory for the men from the land of the Southern Cross. Seven times did the Blue and Gold line, while the Berkeley players were unable to cross the visitors' goal at all during the whole eighty minutes of strenuous play. California's only score came as the result of a long kick, which Evans neatly placed between the posts.

The team which represented the State University yesterday comes a long way from setting forth the full strength of Schaeffer's squad. Only three of the Berkeley players in the game yesterday are at all likely to be seen in action against Stanford on next Saturday. These three are Evans, Douglas, and Miller. The remaining twelve of yesterday's fifteen were recruited from the second squad and most of these were players from the Freshman team.

The strict adherence to the New South Wales Rugby rules, which was demanded by the Waratahs, robbed the game of considerable interest, particularly in the latter part of the second half. Owing to the close proximity of the all-important California-Stanford game, Coach Schaeffer desired to take out Douglas and Miller, the two Varsity front rankers, at the end of the first half, and so announced at the beginning of the game. According to the New South Wales Union rules, however, as interpreted by Dr. Borzmann, manager of the Waratahs, no substitutes are permitted to enter the field until the first half is over. Schaeffer requested that this rule apply yesterday, and Schaeffer graciously consented, though his team was greatly weakened and the game rendered considerably slower.

In the second half, the California coaches took out Miller and Douglas to save them for the big game and the California team, a second Varsity at that, played the last half of the game with only thirteen men against the Waratahs' fifteen. Considering this situation, the second team deserves a tremendous amount of credit for the gritty play they put forth in the face of overpowering odds. Not until the handicapped team was well exhausted, were the Waratahs able to decisively defeat them.

FIRST HALF CLOSE.
In the first half, the Berkeley seconds played their skillful opponents to a standstill and the last half hour of the game passed without a score. The Waratahs' only try in this division of the game came shortly before the whistle. After half time had elapsed, and when the California team was reduced to thirteen men, the real scoring commenced. Even in the first part of the second half, the Australians were gradually weakening under the strenuous pace, the Blues struck out and scored almost at will toward the close of the game. The visitors deserve no great amount of credit for their victory on account of the strength handicap under which their opponents were struggling. A fast husky eight-man scrum of the very first order more than has its hands full to combat the "stiffest" forwards of the Waratahs. The game may have suited to expect six second team men to cope with their ability for any length of time. Toward the end of the game the Australian front rankers were heeling left and right, and the game may have suited the tactics of the game, but it was nevertheless a much inferior exhibition from the spectator's point of view. If there has ever been any doubt as to whether the California Rugby exponents will play the game without unnecessary business, that doubt should be entirely dispelled now. If the Berkeley men had been the crowd of "roughs" which their enemies have come to consider them, they surely had an opportunity to display their unsportsmanlike character when rather unjustly imposed upon in the matter of substitutes yesterday. There was never a cleaner, harder game played, however, than this one, and the game which the California seconds put up against the famous Waratahs for eighty minutes. Undoubtedly, the Australians would have won the game under any conditions, but the weakened lineup of the Berkeley players leaves them with a very hollow victory.

The visitors opened the game by rushing the ball deep into Blue and Gold territory. A long kick was made by Douglas, which was caught by the Berkeley players with a rush which took the play within striking distance of the Waratahs goal. The few remaining yards to the final whistle were covered by the Berkeley players. The Waratahs broke away with one of their trademark dribbling rushes that took play to within the shadows of the goal posts guarded by the Californians. The Berkeley wing, skillfully headed by one of Douglas's boots and the free kick following removed the ball from play.

Line-out on California's thirty-yard line during first half of Australian-California game played at Berkeley yesterday. Miller, California, playing ball, supported on left by Hollister, California, and opposed by George of the Australians. Douglas of California running up to play.

the score read Waratahs 3; California 0. The remainder of the half passed with no results of importance to either team and the whistle found the ball in midfield.

SCORES THICK AND FAST.

The resumption of play in the second half saw the start of the onslaught upon the California line. Apparently, the Waratahs backs, once under way, were absolutely certain to score. In the early part of the half the advantage was all with the Blue and Gold. Evans broke away for a seventy-yard run and an instant later placed the ball over the Waratahs goal bar on a neat drop as a result of a neatly kicked. Score: Waratahs 3; California 3. This was the last stand of the Blue and Gold, for the Australians were gaining speed, and two tumbles as the result of passing bouts, Dwyer to Melbush, and Miller to Fugh, followed in quick succession. Neither try was converted, and the score stood 3 to 3.

The next try was a pretty piece of work. Fahey picked from the loose, passed to Tasker to Flynn and again to Tasker, who went over. Adams failed to convert. Tasker figured again in the next play which brought a try. He picked up, passed to Wylie to Carroll to Kent and three more points were added to the Australian tally.

Play at this time was continually in California territory and the fast firing Blue and Gold team could offer no opposition to the rushes of their opponents. Carroll and Adams contributed to the increasing score, each carrying over for a try in the last few minutes. One of these was converted and the final score stood Waratahs 23; California 3.

Upon the whole, Coach Schaeffer and Cerf at Berkeley were well pleased by the performance of their charges. The game furnished absolutely no criterion of the chances of California in next Saturday's match with Stanford. The rest of the past few days has been of great benefit to the team, and the game showed himself to be as good as ever. Evans, Allen and Dills will probably be seen on the three-quarter's line now that the former is back in the game and almost undoubtedly be shifted to fullback.

Yesterday's lineup followed:
Australia—Forwards: Griffin, George, Watson, Hill, Fahey, Kent, Wylie, Fugh, Halfback: Flynn.
Three-quarter's: Carroll, Melbush, Adams, Dwyer.
Fullback: Dunbar.
California—second team—Forwards: Crane, Miller, Douglas, Hollister, Saunders, Brant, Dolan, Buckner.
Halfback: Hill.
Five-eighths: Duff, Gianelli.
Three-quarter's: Hayes, Lane, Evans.
Fullback: Price.

Cardinals Defeat Olympic Rugger on Stanford Field

(By L. N. GOSSELDOCK, Jr.)

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Nov. 2.—Like a whirlwind sweeping over Stanford field, the Cardinal Varsity defeated the struggling Olympic Club Rugby team by the score of 19-0 in the final preliminary game of the season, and next Saturday will take the field against the Blue and Gold of California in the annual struggle for football supremacy. Never before in the history of Rugby football has Stanford been able to host of a crack fifteen free from injury, and if Stanford should lose, it would not be because the team has been weakened by the loss of its star players.

Cardinal took the field in the pink of condition and left it equally as fit. Nor was the victory an easy one for Stanford. The clubmen put up one of their best games of the season, the opponents were too tough for them. From the kickoff until the whistle, which ended the unequal contest, the varsity kept its opponents on the defensive throughout.

MUNICIPAL MEAT SHOPS ARE OPENED IN BERLIN

High Cost of Living Cause of Rioting and Thousands Loot Butcher Stores

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—The cost of living in Germany has become so pressing that Berlin authorities have imported large quantities of Russian meat and have opened municipal butcher shops where the meat is sold at a very small profit in order to relieve the starving poor population.

The following description of the scenes which ensued when the crowds stormed the stands trying to buy this meat is taken from the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger: "The police had surrounded the market hall with a very strong cordon and permitted only bona fide purchasers to enter the hall. They were admitted in batches of one hundred and served at eight stands. Meanwhile a riotous crowd outside increased hourly and the crowd began to break through the cordon and looted the shops.

SHOPS ARE LOOTED.
"Seeing that it was impossible to storm the hall, they invaded the neighboring streets, shouting, singing and whistling. There were few policemen in these streets and they could not prevent the crowds from storming a butcher shop in Mullerstrasse. They broke the shop windows and stole all the meat they could lay hands on.

"Then a poultry shop opposite was looted, the stock destroyed and fired. The police, however, succeeded in extinguishing the fire in the shop.

"In Frankstrasse a number of butcher shops were looted, but there the police succeeded in repelling the attack before much damage had been done. When, at 8 o'clock, the market halls closed crowded around there numbered hundreds of thousands, and the situation became very dangerous. However, about this time it began to rain and gradually the crowd dispersed. Since then there has been daily rioting in the neighborhood of almost all market halls.

MEAT AT 20 CENTS.
"Meat is not bad, selling at 20 cents a pound, which, however, is considered still much too high for the small purses of the common people of Berlin."

The Vossische Zeitung, describing the riots, said:
"Before 5 o'clock a. m. at least two thousand women gathered in front of the market. Bitterly demanding admission, they finally broke through the police officials stationed at the door of the hall into the streets, threw them down and mistreated them in an awful manner while other hordes of them invaded the shops. The butchers told the infuriated women they could not sell them any meat, as that which had been delivered to them by the authorities was of the very poorest quality. Having had this announcement made when the crowd was at its height, they attacked the butchers.

"We want meat," they cried, "but you don't want to sell us any. We are tired of starving, you thieves and bloodsuckers!"

WOMEN CONDUCT RAID.
"In less than no time the butchers' stands were raided. Not a pound of meat or a single sausage remained. With knives they cut from the carcasses large pieces of meat, which they carried away in baskets or pockets. Some of the women took strings of sausages from the stands and threw them among the crowds who could not come near enough. They trampled games in a highly satisfactory manner.

The players were as follows: Olympic Club—Haley, Glanbeck, Sheehan, Querin, Skov, Russell, Hardy, Land, forwards; Montgomery, halfback; Austin and Weyman, five-eighths; Peters, wing three-quarter; Lant, center three-quarter; Butler, wing three-quarter; Van Mendenham, fullback.
Stanford Varsity—Hall, Sanborn, My, Corbet, Smith, Schaepp, Dunsen, Glover, Partridge, Gerd, forwards; Case, halfback; Welling and Harrigan, five-eighths; Kern, wing three-quarter; center three-quarter; Noble, wing three-quarter; Thoburn, fullback; Erb and Brown.

Did Almshouse Pair Have Suicide Pact?

WOMAN FOUND DEAD WITH MAN AT LODGING HOUSE IS IDENTIFIED.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—The woman who was found dead in a lodging house at Polson and Ninth streets last night, together with J. J. Dennison, a teamster, was identified tonight as David Murray, an inmate of the almshouse. Dennison was also living at that institution and the couple left there yesterday morning, hiring a room later in the day at the hotel. It is believed that they arranged a suicide pact and deliberately turned on the gas.

NOTICE TO VOTERS

Under the law of this state pasters invalidate the whole ballot. It is reported that some persons, apparently of the Bull Moose persuasion, have had printed on slips the names of gentlemen represented as Taft electors, and that these pasters will be circulated at the polls. Every ballot on which one of these slips is pasted will be thrown out. The gentlemen whose names are printed on the slips have not authorized the use that is being made of their names. If any person wishes to vote for them he will have to WRITE their names on the ballot. His vote will not count for anybody if he PASTES a slip on the ballot.

POLICE RESCUE WOMAN FROM SELF-STARVATION

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Johanna Rier, who for eight days had remained in her home in Alton, Ill., refusing to permit even her husband to enter the house, was found weak from starvation and in a serious condition when the police finally broke into the house. Mrs. Rier is now recovering from her ordeal. Her husband, Joseph Rier, who says she owns two large farms near Pana, Ill., for months neighbors had noted her acting strangely, seemingly trying to avoid contact with them.

CAMPAIGN FOR MORE MEMBERS

SILVER CUP TO BE AWARDED
TO Y. M. C. A. TEAM OBTAINING LARGEST NUMBER OF NEW MEMBERS.

Nine thousand letters with accompanying printed matter, were sent out by the Oakland Young Men's Christian Association last night, telling of the great membership campaign, which is to begin tomorrow and continue for five days, and of the advantages to be gained by enrolling as a member. The literature will be followed up by the activity this week of hundreds of Y. M. C. A. canvassers, belonging to teams representing the six departments of the association.

Already names are being brought in by the workers, who will vie with each other in the effort to win for one of the teams a valuable silver cup which has been offered as a trophy by Charles H. J. Truman.

Last Thursday evening a meeting of the teams was held and the members were paired to work against each other in the week's competition. So there will be rivalry between individuals as well as between teams in obtaining members. Challenges were the order of the evening.

Next Tuesday evening there will be a membership rally, following the second day of the campaign. Work will begin in earnest tomorrow morning.

Imports Show a Marked Decrease This Year Over Last 12 Months.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2. — The passing of tin plate from an article of importation to an important staple of exportation in the foreign trade of the United States is illustrated by figures compiled by the statistical division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, which shows that in the nine months ended with September exports of tin and tin plate were more than 44 times as much as imports of like products. Until the fiscal year 1911 imports of tin plate had always exceeded exports of that article, the reversal of this condition being first noted in the figures of 1912. In the decade 1890-99 the United States imported 4625 million pounds and exported less than the succeeding decade, 1900-9, during which time domestic production had attained important proportions, imports aggregated 1854 million pounds and exports 125 million; in 1911 imports were 95 million and exports 70 million pounds, while in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1912, tin plate imports had dropped to 7 million and exports of that article had risen to 182 million pounds. In addition to the 182 million pounds of tin plate exported in 1912, there was a movement during the last fiscal year more than 220 million pounds.

The preponderance of exports over imports of tin plate is even more sharply observed in figures covering the nine months ended with September of the current year. Tin plate exports have amounted to about 150 million pounds, valued at 5 million dollars, while imports of like products were but 3 million pounds, valued at $161,000. A large proportion of the tin plate now imported is used in the manufacture of cans and other articles for use in exportation, subject upon such exportation, to a "drawback" or refund of the duties paid upon the material from which they are manufactured. Even the importation of tin plate to be used for this purpose has been, however, greatly reduced within the last year, the total imports of that article in the fiscal year 1912 having been, as above indicated, but seven million pounds, against 182 million pounds in the year immediately preceding.

The progress of the domestic tin plate industry is further indicated by comparison of production, importation and exportation. During the period from 1892 to 1912 production increased from 42 million pounds to approximately 200 million pounds, the figure for the calendar year 1910, the latest date for which data are available, having been 193 million pounds. During the same time imports of tin plate fell from 1088 million pounds in 1891 to 654 million in 1912, while exports increased from 21,000 pounds in 1891 to 182 million pounds in the fiscal year 1912.

comes from the United Kingdom, to which was credited 2,843,674 pounds out of a total of 3,361,616 pounds imported during the nine months ended with September of the tin plate imported, over one-half is credited to Canada. Of the 1,487,825 pounds exported during nine months ended with September, 1,311,317 of pounds went to China, 13,888,893 pounds to China, 1,877,816 to British India, approximately 64 million pounds each to Hongkong and Japan, 84 million to Argentina, near 44 million pounds each to Mexico and Brazil, 24 million pounds to Cuba, and the remaining 2 million pounds to various other countries.

Greenwood, who is assistant superintendent of the school, responded in a few well-chosen remarks, after which all enjoyed the following program:

Several songs, with guitar accompaniment, by Mr. Reicher.

Remarks by Rev. F. L. Goodspeed.

Recitations and stories, by Mrs. Lillian Strait Slender.

After the program the evening was given over to the children, who amused themselves with Halloween games while the parents and friends inspected the handiwork of the elementary grade. Refreshments were served by the committee.

Husband Lets Divorce Go
Through When "Bulldog Face" Is Mentioned.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Emma A. Harris, an actress of 635 Ash avenue, was introduced to George F. Harris, a waltz and clog dancer, while both were performing on a vaudeville circuit. It developed after they had decided on marriage and had been wedded, however, that they could not keep house together in the daily routine of the household and Mrs. Harris recently filed suit for divorce. Today Superior Judge Conley in the extra session court listened to her story of incompatibility of temperaments. Harris contested the suit. He declared that William Levy, a theatrical agent who had introduced them, had vouched for Mrs. Harris, recommending her as a good cook. He declared that he had not tested any creations of her culinary art which would lead him to give her a testimonial. Finally Mrs. Harris remarked that she had overheard her spouse telling a mutual friend that his wife had a "bulldog face."

Upon hearing this Harris decided to quit and give up the fight. "Let her have the divorce," he said finally, as he took his attorney by the arm and led him out of the courtroom.

THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK AT THE LIBRARY

MADGE DEAR:

We have had such an exciting week, and I am disappointed that you had to miss it all. Ruth met every train until your telegram arrived, blaming her hopes.

The centennial was a credit to the town, and every one feels amply repaid for any time spent in preparation. You remember that charming Mr. Spencer, whom you were so impressed with last year? He is a great philanthropist, and presented the town with a wonderful library. Wednesday afternoon we gave a reception to formally open it to the public. I have haunted the place ever since the roof made it weatherproof and know intimately every nook and cranny. No expense has been spared to make it "a thing of beauty."

Needless to add, the week's entertainment taxed our wardrobes to the fullest extent. The autumn suits are lovely, and one had an excellent chance to admire them at the library reception.

Gertrude Webb wore the smartest three-piece suit of blue broadcloth. The bodice and skirt were trimmed with peau de sude and Persian embroidery. This note is strong this season. If you would be smart, have a dress introducing the Persian influence.

The attractive jacket was cut away to disclose a vest of the peau de sude. Her hat was similar to the one you described—black velvet, with butterfly wings of pleated ribbon adorning the front.

One of the most striking girls of the younger set is Ethel Norton. She manages somehow to wear distinctive clothes. Her frock of brown broadcloth had a fitted skirt. The acru broadcloth coat, closely following the Russian blouse lines, had collar, cuffs and belt of brown, matching the skirt. A double row of tortoise-shell buttons was used to trim both the front and back.

A chic little hat of black hatter's plush, faced with brown velvet and trimmed with an ostrich plume, completed this effective costume.

Helen Barnett wore the smartest cover-all coat I have seen. It was fashioned of double-faced cloth, green-and-tan plaid on the upper side and plain green beneath. The turned-down collar, cuffs and belt were of the plain material. Her hat of tan felt had a band of green satin drawn about the crown. A series of flat bows of the green satin were arranged one above the other directly in front.

I wanted to appear "at my best," so wore a three-piece costume of dark-blue velvet. It was made in the director's fashion, with touches of blue satin on the collar and cuffs.

A deep frill of white lace provides the needed softness about the neck. I have a stunning tricorn hat of black velvet adorned with a plume of coo feathers.

You should feel a keen twinge of remorse that you were unable to lend your charming presence to our library reception. Now for a rare morsel of news to awaken anticipation: Mrs. Howard Cranel is planning to take society by storm this winter. Her first affair will be in two weeks. Come! You always enjoy her parties.

My best love to you and the family.

Always devotedly, ELEANOR.

PARIS PUTS UP BARS ON WINANS

Spendthrift Past Makes Gay City Forbidden to Bail—more Man.

Money Lenders Find a Weak Spot in Protecting Clause in Will.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

(By PAUL PIERRE RIGNAUX.)

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The present happiness of Thomas Winans, son of the late Ross Winans of Baltimore, is being constantly marred by rising specters of his spendthrift past.

After having obtained a generous compromise in the participation in his father's estate from Ross W. Whistler, to whom the major portion of the estate was left, a settlement allowing him to pay his debts and live in luxury, he finds himself faced with criminal proceedings in Paris to account for $50,000 worth of notes entrusted to him and which he cannot produce.

A warrant for his arrest has been issued, and he is in Malaga, a forbidden person in Paris.

EXHAUSTS MEANS.

About the time of his marriage to the Spanish dancing girl, whose sister is the wife of the Maharajah of Kapurthala, he thoughtlessly exhausted every means of raising money. Some, unfortunately, were more than questionable, so that when his father died and left an income of $200,000, the creditors soon discovered that "The spendthrift's trust" clause, which was evidently intended by the father to protect the income, was badly drawn, making it possible to attach money coming to Tom.

Flunk, a money lender, was the principal creditor to whom Winans had given $100,000 worth of notes. Along with others these took the entire income in attachments, Flunk putting on $98,000. The notes had never been discounted by Flunk and Tom claims he received no benefit from them, but that they were just held by the clever money lender for a fit occasion to realize. So Mr. Winans found himself heir to an income of $200,000, but penniless.

EMPLOYEES LAVER.

He employed S. C. Archibald, an eminent American lawyer in Paris, to attend to his interest. On a recent trip to America Mr. Archibald saw Ross Whistler and put forth the claims of Tom and the Count de Bern, who married his sister Beatrice, and was also practically cut off in the will. He obtained a satisfactory settlement for both, so that there was no necessity for resort to the courts. Tom, thinking to become serious in life, obtain a position at $25 a week with the firm of Thorman & Co. This firm is composed of Thorman and Louis Prince, a former New York banker. In his need of money, he arranged with the Marquis de Castella, who was in an equally bad position, to exchange notes for $50,000, which, being endorsed by both, might be more easily negotiated. Winans placed the notes of the Marquis with Thorman & Co. to discount on a commission basis, but claimed nothing was ever done.

He had forgotten the incident until recently the Marquis, coming into a large fortune by the death of his father, returned Winans' notes, requesting him to do likewise with his. But the notes could not be found. Louis Prince professed ignorance of the whereabouts of the notes and the Marquis was forced to enter proceedings against Winans. Not appearing to answer the charge, a warrant was issued for him. Attorney Archibald has just returned from visiting the Winans family in Malaga and brought with him a full list of Winans' debts, which will be paid where honest credit is given, but not where any semblance of trickery was shown. Winans will not come to Paris before the new year to fight the case as he expects an arrival in the family.

GINSENG WORTH $8 A POUND IN CHINA

Hongkong ginseng dealers report improved conditions in their market over the discouraging situation presented early in the current year. According to General George B. Anderson, of Hongkong, imports of the root from the United States have been in far volume, but at the same time the comparatively large stocks on hand about the time of the Chinese New Year have been reduced, being placed at 10,666 pounds at the middle of February and 18,666 pounds at the same time last year. Prices on the whole have advanced slowly though not radically, the present average price for an average of all grades being about $8.11 gold per pound. Fluctuations during the past two months have chiefly been in the finer grades, running perhaps $1 gold per pound as a maximum rise.

The course of the trade during the current year has been one of steady recovery from the effects of the disturbances in China, which interfered with business during the closing months of 1911 and the earlier months of the current season. Conditions are still far from normal and further disturbances of the trade is looked for in the north; however, the feeling among merchants is one of decided optimism. Demand at present is almost, if not quite, as strong as it was a year ago before the revolution, while the supply is somewhat less and prices generally are firm and inclined to rise.

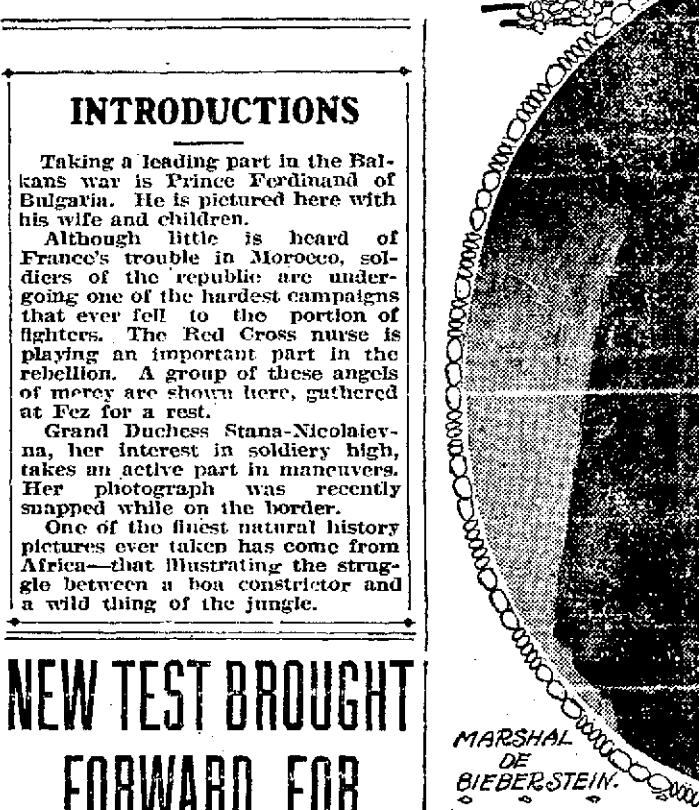

Chinese customs returns show imports of ginseng into China from all countries in 1911 to have amounted to 231,401 pounds, valued at $494,312 gold at the average exchange for the year, as compared with 255,312 pounds, valued at $501,135, imported in 1910. While details of the origin of these imports are not yet at hand, it is understood that Hongkong has a decreasing part in the trade in the drug as a result of the development of Japanese and a redevelopment of Korean production, and American ginseng exports have been hurt somewhat by the change.

PORTRAITS OF CELEBRITIES WHO SHINE IN OTHER LANDS

GRAND-DUCHESSE STANA-NICOLAIEVNA, ON FRONTIER.

MARSHAL DE BIEDERSTEIN.

PRINCE FERDINAND, WIFE AND CHILDREN.

A DRAMA OF AFRICA

PARIS, Nov. 2.—One of these wedding which delight Paris has just been celebrated in the union of M. Arnyvelde with Mile. Sauret. The bridegroom is a well known militant dramatist and journalist and his bride is also a woman of letters, as well as being the daughter of a general commanding the district of Rennes.

The wedding was as other weddings, but after the luncheon that succeeded the ceremony the city editor of Le Bala, to whose staff M. Arnyvelde has long been attached, was heartily and intrepid enough to demand their "first impressions," thus inaugurating a terrible precedent.

Most newly wedded pairs, when only an hour or two old in the bonds of wedlock, would have declined with thanks or indignation. But M. Arnyvelde merely picked up one of the menus of the luncheon and wrote on the back:

"Among flowers and fresh faces I slip into the white dress, the frail lace and the wreath. I am surrounded with tender and watchful folks. I go downstairs shod in silver."

"Suddenly the stair transformed into a marble way. I mount the motor car, which certainly believes itself a coach, and am lightly carried away. And this is amusing. Here is the Marquis which perhaps just for the nonce is a fairy tale temple with its green bushes and its saloon of crimson and gold."

WEDED TO THE "PRINCE."

"And here is a superb gentleman, a gentleman much more beautiful than the rest with a broad wash of blue and red, a silky and dazzling symbol. Before him I sit on a great velvet chair, and by my side there is a dark young man, certainly a prince."

"Now we are in the halls of a palace filled with light and multitudes. Words and words of wit. What words, what smiles, what bright eyes! The prince takes me by the hand and leads me up to admirers, and the mirrors profusely provide my image, the brilliancy, and the people of the hall are all eyes."

"But pleasure, emotions, splendour are strewn in handfuls: yet all our glory was equalled, as I saw at the door of my princess' coach, and all along the streets, the crown of little faces, and as I heard the murmurs of the children, the street arabs, and the workgirls with their honest eyes and their impatient heads. 'She is pretty, the bride!' She is gentler!"

And then Madame handed her pen to me.

"You want impressions? At this moment? I want to go to the buffet badly. I am hungry. But one of the looking glasses of the huge room where we are, reflecting our friends shows me the right of my wife. Mr. Sauret's rancor. And O joy—very sweet, as you may imagine—comes over me! Ah yes! My wife runs up to introduce some of her own particular friends. Handshakes, bows of several feet."

LANDSLIDE EMPTIES LAKE IN CHESHIRE

CHESHIRE, Eng., Nov. 2.—A large lake formed near Dunkirk, in the North-west district of Cheshire, famous for its rock-salt mine, and brine pumping, as the result of a landslide, then suddenly emptied itself, leaving a collapse of water disappeared. The lake, which was about 100 feet deep, and contained about 100,000,000 gallons of water, disappeared in a few minutes. The water almost reached its former level. Yesterday morning the lake disappeared again and a big landslide occurred. The bed of the lake has sunk several feet.

Berliners give credit to the emperor, who is now more popular than ever, for pressing the necessity of a big stadium and the necessity of a big stadium. Twelve years ago he ordered the building of the Doberitz Heerstrasse at a great cost in the construction of a grand celebration time. This avenue will be the most beautiful in the world, according to the world traveled. It will be 18 miles long in continuation of Unter den Linden, and contain one general driveway for automobiles, flanked by flowerbeds and trees, and a second driveway for equestrian, flanked by trees and two broad sidewalks, beginning at the Doberitz Heerstrasse and running through the city to the city center. The famous Charlottenberger technical school, where are 20,000 students, it continues on to the city center. It opens upon a fine down hill panorama of forest country, dotted with palaces and quaint villas. The whole avenue will be brilliantly lighted and kept up by a special corps of men.

OPERA PALACE PLANNED.

Another feature of the plan of inaugurating a season rivaling London and Paris, is the projected erection of a grand opera house at a cost of $20,000,000. Several sites are in view for this edifice, but so far the most favored location is the famous Charlottenberger technical school, where are 20,000 students, it continues on to the city center. Tricks of Bad Breeding

BY Lillian Russell

"THE WOMAN WHO FINISHES HER TOILET ON THE STREET OR IN A CAR, WHO ROCKS BACK AND FORTH, FIDGETS, HUMS, PULLS AT HER VEIL AND TAPS HER TOES, AND THE MAN WHO MANICURES HIS NAILS, PICKS HIS TEETH AND ADJUSTS HIS CLOTHING REGARDLESS OF PLACE AND PEOPLE ALL ARE NOT ONLY DISTRESSING TO OBSERVE BUT ARE ADVERTISING TO THE WORLD HOW ILL-BRED THEY ARE."

SAYS:

Do not be continually adjusting and pulling at your veil and gloves. Repose is a wonderful aid to beauty.

Copyright 1912 By Lillian Russell
NOT to offend in look or manner is a great deal to say of man or woman. And we should be equal to this out of regard to others, if not for ourselves.

There is the woman who finishes her toilet in the street or in a car, the man who picks his teeth, stretches himself and adjusts his clothing regardless of place and people, the woman who rocks back and forth, who fidgets with her fingers, pulls at her veil, pulls at her hair, and taps her toes incessantly.

There is the man who fingers his silver and keys in his pockets, who taps on anything handy, who whistles and yawns. There is the woman who picks at her face, bites her lips, and shifts.

All of these habits are unfortunate indications of bad breeding. They are tricks born of vacant minds and obtuse senses—tricks that become habits of nervousness. They are defects of the control that should come from the brain and the sensibility which belongs to it.

There is no link missing between the little failure of nerve which gives rise to these tricks, and the not very much greater lack which causes epileptic failure. Then do you know how to sit down?

Well, if you do not you must resign yourself to going down into old age with hip proportions which make a woman so unsightly. How many women we see who have spread out in ungainly fashion below the waist, having completely lost all that symmetry of figure which a little attention to posture would have enabled them to retain. Remember that the manner of sitting has brought them to this pass, women try all manner of exercises to reduce this superfluous flesh.

Sit Up Straight in Your Chair.

Few people really sit properly. Most of us lool in our chairs on the small of the back, with curved shoulders and depressed diaphragm pushing every internal organ out against the walls of the abdomen. Is it any wonder we get deformed as we grow older? The head, too, sags forward, pulling the muscles at the back of the neck until in time a lump of fat is accumulated there.

If you would avoid all these disfigurements sit up straight in your chair. Push the body well back until the small of your back rests against the back of the chair. The rest of your spine will thus be easily and comfortably supported, and the head will be naturally poised on the shoulders. You can sit thus for a long time without fatigue, because there is no undue strain on the muscles. Best of all, by becoming a "revised sitter," you will escape some of the ills which unregenerate flesh is heir to.

The ordinary American woman consumes much more nervous energy than her mother did, while at the same time her life affords much less opportunity for keeping her nerves in sound order. So it is scarcely strange that most women of this generation have had their nerves go back on them at some time, and have found themselves the victims of a breakdown.

Nothing so much a condition may prove, it is brought about by very natural causes. If you take a longer walk than you are accustomed to you return with your muscles so tired that they refuse to do any more work until they are rested. It is just so with the nerves when they have been under too severe a strain.

Nervous prostration merely means tired nerves. But as the nerves are not so easily wearied as muscles they are not so simply rested. While a night's sleep may be sufficient recuperation for a long walk it may take a year to recover from the effects of a nervous strain.

Retire with Pleasant Thoughts.

Wherever you are, and whatever your environment do not forget the art of retiring. This does not always mean going to bed; it sometimes means a change of occupation to rest the part of the body you have been taxing most. Drink a glass of water before retiring. Through the day preferably one hour or more before or after meals, drink enough water to make the quantity consumed from one to two quarts daily.

Sleep in a well ventilated room, with a small pillow under the head, and lying relaxed at full length either upon the back or front of the body, with the head easily turned. If you find that you prefer sleeping on your side lie on the right side part of the night, then on the left side on the last night of the month, and the right side the next. Above all, let there be no tension of mind or body. Let the cares and vexations of the last hours slip away into the past; let your last waking thoughts of each day be pleasant and peaceful.

If unduly inclined to sleeplessness try to be as quiet as possible. Do not seek to combat or resist the feeling of wakefulness or worry because dumber will not quickly visit you. Lie quietly, shut your eyes, and breathe gently, deeply, and regularly. Imagine yourself in pleasant scenes, but never active—not in the shops trying to match samples or lying over the roads in trains or motors, for these pictures, while doubtless pleasing, are not of a sedative nature.

All habits are controllable and improvable by attention to conditions and things.

Selfishness is perhaps the original sin of all distressing mannerisms. The preference for personal attention cannot be gratified otherwise in many cases.

Be Grateful for Criticism.

Poor mothers are blamed for such defects in their children. But who is to blame for such defective tricks of mothers and fathers? I would not speak of these annoying defects were it not in the power of every individual to control and cure them. The very unconsciousness of them springs from a nervous insensibility.

It is a difficult matter to do so, but society should help these unfortunates to cure their disorders for its own sake. And it is moral imbecility still more culpable which refuses to seek frankly with the trouble.

None are so cruel as those refined persons who shrink from the truth, fearing lest they should hurt one's feelings.

A few painful necessary words may prevent a woman or man from being ostracized as a nuisance.

If you have a brother or a sister who has by a unconscious lapse of attention fallen into a bad nervous habit be a true friend to them and call their minds to notice such habits even though they immediately retaliate by picking at you and some irritation to yourself.

Be grateful for criticism if it be from one who has your interest at heart.

Be as selfish in your desire to give the world something as in taking what the world has to give.

There is no more annoying habit than tapping the fingers or playing with some object on the table.

LILLIAN RUSSELL'S ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES BY BEAUTY SEEKERS.

WING SLIM. Massage the bust with warm cocoa butter each night when retiring. Any exercise that involves the muscles of the chest and arms will help to develop the bust. The following exercise is beneficial in developing the bust. Double your fists as tightly as you can, bringing them together in front with the arms raised so as to be horizontal. While keeping your arms on a level with your shoulders, swing your arms up and down as far as possible. Eat fat making foods, sleep a good deal and don't worry. Deep breathing will also help to enlarge the bust. Each morning upon arising and at night when retiring stand before an open window and take a long deep breath, inhaling through the nostrils and letting it out the same way. Do this five or six minutes. It will not only help to develop your bust, but otherwise improve your general health.

ANOTHER NOTE. Prevention is simpler and more scientific procedure than cure and attention to the needs of the individual in the present will do a great deal for the national health and happiness of future generations. So find out at once if your daughters are "overdoing." Ask them if they feel sick or headachy after an afternoon in the gymnasium, if they find that their physical culture takes away their appetite, or if they sleep badly when they have gymnasium or school sports in addition to their lessons. Get the doctor to regulate the hours your daughter spends at games and physical culture, if she has to work hard for examinations. He will probably insist upon more rest.

and order. Truly walks in the open air instead. Granted that ill health on the part of the schoolgirl is not due to excessive or excessive physical exercise, what of her eyesight? School headaches, lassitude, depression of spirits, are very often caused by some defect of vision or error of refraction. The girl who is constantly complaining of headaches should be examined at once by an oculist, and have any error of refraction, such as short sight, long sight or astigmatism, corrected by suitable glasses.

We are only beginning to realize that defective eyesight may be the cause of mental misdeeds at the school age.

F. F. F. No good grade of powder will not harm the face if you thoroughly cleanse the face every night when retiring. If you leave the powder on your face it will clog the pores and cause blackheads. You might try massaging the scars with a good cream or skin food. This will gradually fill them out, and they will disappear. If you will send me a stamped addressed envelope I shall be glad to send you my instructions for removing blackheads and pimples.

R. E. C. Don't, I beg of you, attempt to use peroxide on your hair. It will bleach it and make it a dirty blonde color, also make the hair dry and harsh, and without life. It will cause your hair to break. It may make the hair a pretty golden color at first, but it will soon disappear, and the hair will become dirty and dull looking.

L. R. There is a great deal to be remembered about hats. When you go to a milliner and begin to try on hats, just notice what the color of the hat does to you. If a bright red hat makes you look pale and hollow-eyed, don't be persuaded into buying that hat and don't trust the milliner. If you are white skinned and colorless, a green hat will make you look bluish. A black hat will make you look gray. What you need is a soft brown, or just the right shade of blue. Above all, you need something soft about the face. A roll of velvet over the edge of the brim will make all the difference possible. And now, as you look at yourself in the glass, remember this. The first impression you get of yourself in the new hat is the best. The more you look at it the more accustomed to it you become, and until finally it is difficult for you to tell what is the matter.

If the hat looks all right when you first put it on, if you have a feeling of satisfaction as you turn toward the glass and catch that first glimpse of yourself, then surely it is the hat for you.

ESTER. Don't use the cold cream more than once a day. At night when retiring is the best time to use it. Give the face a thorough cleansing first with the cold cream, and then wash it in warm water and plenty of good soap. Rinse the face thoroughly first in warm water, then in very cold water. Still take a piece of ice and so on.

D. R. B. That harmful results often follow an ignorant method of reducing weight is so well known that predict persons are wont to consult a physician before adopting certain massage lotions. Internal remedies for obesity, regimen of diet, and severe physical exercises. The matter of food, too, can only be safely regulated by a physician acquainted with the constitution of the individual. Fatal heart disease has been known to follow rapid reduction through overeating walks before breakfast and anemia and long illness to result from improper diet.

Physical exercises with a moderation, however, can be safely taken by any woman in fulling that most excellent walk before breakfast, and the extent of these can be regulated to her general condition. You should always bear in mind, however, that the benefit of physical culture lies not so much in the amount of exercise indulged in as in the regularity with which it is taken.

MARTORIE. The eyes should be washed as carefully each day as the face. I shall be glad to send you formula for an eye wash which is good for granulated eyes. It is a mixture of water and salt. It is a good eye wash. Wash the eye with the cup, then fitting the cup into the eye and throwing the head back and opening the eye. This washes the eye thoroughly.

SOCIETY

NEWS OF SOCIETY FROM NOTEBOOK OF SUZETTE

It is the day and hour when boards of directors of our various charities are confronted with many financial problems. How their charges are to be provided for in the winter, how life is to be made bright for them during the holidays, offers a problem difficult of solution. All sorts of plans for entertainments are being offered, each matron of a smart set striving to present something which may prove at the same time interesting, popular and entertaining. In Europe they manage things better than we do, for the ladies of the court circles take the greatest interest in charity affairs, and they make them so successful that Crown Princess Cecilie has asked several leading American society women in Berlin to assist at a novel charity entertainment on November 28. It will take the form of a great afternoon tea in the marble hall of the beautiful Zoological Gardens restaurant and will be for the benefit of needy members of the German aristocracy and others described as "the gentle poor." It is the first occasion in Germany of a public benefit organized on behalf of this class.

Not only is the object of the Crown Princess' entertainment a new one, but the manner in which the tea will be given and the financial results assured is equally without precedent. Her Imperial Highness has invited 100 women to preside over individual tables and to guarantee minimum receipts of 100 marks, or $25, apiece. They must also furnish everything requisite for their tables except the tea itself, including linen, glassware, porcelain and decorations. They must also have the tea served by their own servants. This, the Crown Princess believes, will result in a delightful competition for pretty table effects, and, to spur her fair collaborators on to special efforts in this direction, prizes will be offered for the handsomest tables.

The future Kaiserin will have a calls for a fair amount of ingenuity and it entails no little time and trouble in searching out suitable trimmings, most of which belong to bygone periods and can only be found in old curiosity shops or among heirloom bundles of quaint embroideries, old laces and rich Old World brocades.

This new fad for box trimming seems to be creating a fresh industry, for, not content with ordinary shapes and sizes, devotees of the new art are calling for cardboard models made to represent grand pianos, sedan chairs, old-fashioned chests of drawers, miniature bureaus, and quaint shaped cabinets, which, by the aid of rich fabrics and scissors and paste, are skillfully converted into things of beauty—and often of value, for they are covered not only with rare brocades, but with everything old and interesting, from quaint backed playing cards to old wallpaper, scraps of precious lace, French embroideries, and even jewels, set so as to outline and emphasize the pattern of real lace.

These boxes are all the rage for bridge prizes. They were the prizes which Mrs. Hammer prepared for her guests last year, and they made beautiful prizes at the bridge afternoon given last week by Mrs. Spring and her daughter, Mrs. Robert Newell.

WOMEN ACCORD HONOR TO KNOWLAND

Political activities have been very much to the foreground this week, since it is the last week of a great political campaign. Of course, to many the campaign has meant far more than just the ordinary election, since the safety of our city depends so largely on the result.

One of the most important meetings, which also had a social side to it, was that given at Elmhurst, when Mrs. Lucy Barker organized a large meeting. It was for anti-annexation on one side, and as a great compliment to our popular and most successful Representative, Joseph R. Knowland.

It was right and proper that he should be the guest of honor, since a her Elmhurst home, where a delightful repast was served. The evening was one of the most enjoyable of the whole campaign, and the compliment to Hon. Joseph R. Knowland was appropriate and very gracefully planned.

And as for the anti-annexation side of the meeting, sentiment is all the Oakland way—there is only one side in the great east bay city.

COBB-MAYHEW WEDDING BRILLIANT

One of the most beautiful weddings of the year in Alameda county was that of Saturday, October 26, when Miss Emerilla Mayhew of Niles was united in marriage to William Richard Cobb of San Francisco. The ceremony took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Shinn, the home of the bride's sister. It was an outdoor wedding, the day proving ideal, with warm sunlight and soft balmy air.

woman presided at the meeting. Mr. Knowland's political career has been so honorable; he has been so just, so conscientious in every respect, so devoted to the cause of the people, that the women of his district favor his cause in every way possible. That was evident in the large vote they cast for him in the recent primary election, and his success is assured on next Tuesday. The vote of the women of his district goes largely to him, and they would like to add, "With their compliments and their best wishes for his future career."

NEW CRAZE COMES FROM FAR AWAY LANDS.

A craze that has enjoyed popularity in Paris and Berlin has lately spread to America, where it is fast becoming a fad of fashion. This is nothing more or less than the trimming of picturesque trinket and bon-bon boxes that are to be found in bedrooms and drawing-rooms.

How the new craze originated it is hard to say. Certain it is that it has come to stay, and is creating no little interest and amusement among them who are taking it up. Recently Mrs. Barker invited the members to

The showers of the day before had made fresh and beautiful the varicolored autumn foliage of shrubs and trees.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Vernon F. Jones of the Niles Congregational church. The color scheme chosen for the wedding was mauve and gold. A beautiful bower formed of low-growing shrubs under a graceful camphor tree, adorned with branches of yellow autumn leaves and bows of yellow tulle, at one side of the spacious lawn, was the spot chosen for the plighting of the marriage vows.

One hundred and twenty guests were present from the bay cities and the surrounding township.

At the appointed hour, 11:30 a. m., the groom, accompanied by Lester Walcott of San Francisco as best man, Rev. Mr. Jones and Rev. R. H. Cobb of Palo Alto, grandfather of the groom, took their places in the bower to await the coming of the bride. At the same time the bridal party approached from the vine-covered porch preceded by Miss Mabel Clinch of Grass Valley, her clear notes ringing out in song, "Here Comes the Bride" from Lohengrin. Following came the maid of honor, Miss Edith Atherton, the bridesmaids—Miss Hope Matthews of Oakland, Miss Edna Sharpe of Oakland, and Miss Lella Guthrie of Portland, and, lastly, the bride, down the carpeted pathway bordered by flowering shrubs, to the marriage altar. The whole bridal party grouped in the bower formed a strikingly beautiful picture.

The bride's dress was of white charmeuse made on train and trimmed with rose point Venetian lace. A long veil of tulle fastened with natural orange blossoms fell in graceful folds over the train. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and lavender orchids. The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore gowns of charmeuse in delicate shades of mauve and carried bouquets of great yellow chrysanthemums, the maid of honor carrying a beautiful basket of violets and delicate fern. The bridesmaids wore a dress of yellow crepe de chine. The wedding ceremony was most impressive, the closing prayer being offered by the grandfather of the groom, 84 years of age, the oldest minister of the Methodist church in California.

After congratulations and good wishes of the assembled guests, all were seated at tables under a wide spreading tulip tree, golden in its foliage of yellow leaves, the bride's table being in the center. The tables were beautifully decorated with marigolds, lavender, colored blossoms and smilax, the bride's table carrying also lavender bows of tulle. The tables were served by young girls in dainty frocks and ribbons, adding a special charm to the occasion. During luncheon there were vocal solos by Miss Helen Crane and Miss Mabel Clinch.

Before the close, Rev. Jones, acting as toastmaster, called on half a dozen friends of the bride and groom, who responded in brief and witty speech. Rev. Jones closing with an eloquent benediction for the bridal couple and assembled guests, all rising to drink to the health and happiness of the newly wedded pair. A beautiful array of wedding gifts in silver, cut glass, decorated china, hammered metals and other materials was admired by the guests during the afternoon hours.

The bridal bouquet was caught by Miss Emeline Harrold of Oakland, and a shower of rice followed the automobile that bore away the bride and groom on their wedding trip, the destination being kept secret. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Cobb will make their home in San Francisco.

MISS PAGE-BROWN BRIDE OF MOORE.

Miss Katrina Page-Brown, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Page-Brown, was added this week to the long list of the season's brides. On Wednesday at noon her marriage to Austin Percy Moore of San Francisco was celebrated in the new Spanish Catholic church, Nuestra Señora de la Esperanza, in West One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street, between Broadway and Riverside Drive. A high dignitary of the church officiated at the wedding ceremony, which is the first that has taken place in this picturesque church since its dedication last July.

The bride had her sisters, the Misses Lucy and Agnes Page-Brown, to act as bridesmaids, and her cousin, Miss Sarah Pryor Dodge, was the flower girl. Earl Miller of San Francisco was Mr. Moore's best man, and his cousin, Frederick Sherman, and Mr. Eyre served as ushers.

Owing to the bride's family being in mourning, only the immediate families attended the wedding breakfast, which took place at the home of ex-Justice Roger A. Pryor of 3 West Sixty-ninth street, grandfather of the bride.

Mr. Moore is the son of the late Charles Moore of San Francisco and Mrs. Willis Polk, whose husband is the chairman of the architectural committee of the Panama exposition.

Mrs. Willis Polk went to New York to attend the wedding of her son.

FORMER SAN FRANCISCO TO ASSIST PRINCESS.

Mrs. Albert P. Niblack, wife of the American naval attaché, and the Countess de Gontaut-Biron, eldest daughter of Ambassador and Mrs. Leishman, are among the American women whom Crown Princess Cecilie has invited to assist her at a coming charity affair. They have agreed to do so, provided the tea does not interfere with their participation in the American colony's Thanksgiving day celebration, which takes place on the same evening in an adjacent salon of the Zoological Gardens.

Mrs. Niblack, who is so very popular in court circles in Berlin, was for-

RAINS INCREASE MOUNTAIN STREAM

OROVILLE, Nov. 2.—The recent rain meant much to the hydro-electric company, as the mountain streams are companies for it increased the flow in mountain streams to a considerable extent, renewed the flow of springs and deposited moisture in such quantities that the added flow will be maintained for some time. The increase in the flow of the Feather river, for instance, enabled the Great Western Power Co. to take the manufacture of 2000 kw from its steam plant and add it to the output of the hydroelectric plant at Big Bend.

Letters of a Slim-Made Woman to Her Fat Sister

Fifth Letter: On the Shining Virtue That Fat Folks Sel-dom Possess--Patience

Dear Sir: If all people had the virtues others think they have, this world would be a paradise.
